HUTCHISON FROM OTTAWA

Times Editor Says Pearson Easy Winner

By BRUCE HUTCHISON
Editor of the Times

OTTAWA—The Liberal party convention opening here Tuesday will launch Canada into a major political crisis only a few days later.

In the first phase of the complicated manoeuvres now under way, the initiative will rest with the new Liberal leader, presumably Mr. L. B. Pearson.

In the second phase the initiative will pass to Prime Minister Diefenbaker.

The third phase, a general election, will be settled by the voters.

Phase One can hardly be delayed beyond the first days of next week when Mr. Pearson faces Parliament for the first time as Leader of the Opposition and must then decide to defeat the government, as he can easily do, or to maintain it in office for the time being.

How will Mr. Pearson choose between these only available alternatives? That is the first great unknown of the developing crisis. The decision will not be easy.

If Mr. Pearson continues the Liberal party's strategy of recent weeks, attacks the government but refuses to move a vote of want of confidence the government will taunt him with the charge of timidity and fear of the elections.

If he moves such a motion and is supported by the CCF as probably he would be, the government will fall.

That schedule would suit the government perfectly. Caught in a net of unforeseen problems economic and financial the government is panting for a chance to postpone them and hide its budgetary deficits until it can escape to the country and win a majority. But for this escape it needs a reasonable excuse which so far the Liberal party has refused to supply by opposing any government policy in a parliamentary vote.

Caught in Net of Problems

If Mr. Pearson provides that excuse by a vote of confidence motion next week, Mr. Diefenbaker, it is expected, will move into the second stage of the crisis by dissolving Parliament within hours of an unfavorable vote. That would mean an election less than two months later, toward the latter days of March. Preparations to this end already are under way in the Conservative Party from coast to coast, in case Mr. Diefenbaker decides on a quick lunge. He may

One Ballot to Decide Leadership---Pearson

OTTAWA (CP)—Candidate Lester B. Pearson said today he believes just one ballot will be required to decide the Liberal leadership Thursday night.

"I have no reason to believe there will be any dark horses in the race," he told a press conference.

Reporters recalled that his chief opponent, 54-year-old former health minister Paul Martin has stated he would give Mr. Pearson his old portfolio back if he became Liberal leader and prime minister. What would Mr. Pearson do for Mr. Martin?

"Well, I think Paul Martin was the greatest minister of health and welfare we ever had," replied Mr. Pearson with a smile.

Mr. Martin's campaign committee has stated it has promises of support of some 600 of the 1,500 delegates. How many promises had Mr. Pearson?

"I'm very, very encouraged by the evidence of widespread support I am receiving," said Mr. Pearson, but he declined to disclose any figure. He recalled how confident the Liberals were in the June 10 general election when they were defeated by the Progressive Conservatives.

BOWTIES MUSHROOM

'Mike' All the Way With West Delegates

OTTAWA (CP)—A trainload of some 300 Western Liberals arrived early today with many of the delegates proclaiming themselves in favor of Lester B. Pearson for the party leadership.

Delegate R. H. Walker of Calgary said: "It's going to be 'Mike' Pearson all the way." Delegate L. P. Coderre, member of the Saskatchewan Legislature, predicted that the former external affairs minister will get 60 per cent of Saskatchewan's vote and that the other 40 per cent will go to Paul Martin, former health minister.

As the delegates got out of their 11-car train into the railway station, Mr. Pearson mixed among them, along with Mayor Don Mackay of Calgary, another leadership candidate who says he may decide to withdraw and back Mr. Pearson.

The other candidates, Mr. Martin and Mayor H. L. Henderson of Portage la Prairie, Man., were not around. Mr. Henderson, a Presbyterian minister, said he will wage a campaign without posters or "cowboy show." Mr. Martin said he was "too busy" meeting delegates elsewhere.

LIKE MIKE

As a band struck up a well-known tune, local supporters for Mr. Pearson appeared with huge cardboard bowties and held placards proclaiming: "I like Mike."

Mr. Mackay, colorful, 43-year-old mayor, who tossed his big white cowboy hat into the leadership ring, now is wondering whether he shouldn't yank it out and get behind the bow-tied Mr. Pearson.

Defence Spending Tops U.S. Budget

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower put before the United States Congress today a record peace-time budget just short of $74,000,000,000.

By far the largest part of it, almost two-thirds, is for defence against growing danger from Russia in "the dawn age of space conquest."

The president disclosed that the government now expects to wind up in the red for the fiscal year ending June 30, and he announced his intention to ask for a short-term increase in the present $275,000,000,000 limit on the national debt.

VOICES CONFIDENCE

But he voiced confidence that business will pick up and tax receipts will increase so that the new $73,900,000,000 budget, for the 1958-59 fiscal year, will be in balance. He said he expects a surplus of $500,000,000 or so, compared with the $400,000,000 deficit now in sight for this year.

The White House announced in advance that Eisenhower's budget message, which ran to some 22,000 words with a mass of figures attached, would outline a domestic program largely passed over in last Thursday's "state of the union" message.

It did. But like the earlier message, it put heavy emphasis on security matters with a $39,800,000,000 request for the armed forces alone. With this expected boost, almost $2,000,000,000 higher than last January's estimate, Eisenhower asked:

1. A $3,800,000,000 increase in spending for missile and nuclear weapon research and production. This would give the defence department an extra $1,300,000,000 to spend as soon as the money is appropriated.

Cougar Club Shareholders Seek Meeting

By DOUG FEDEEN
Times Sports Editor

(See sports pages for further details)

Troubles in the ranks of Victoria's community-owned hockey club, heated by the Cougars' poor record, reached a climax at a directors' meeting Sunday afternoon when it was decided to ask playing general-manager Colin Kilburn for his resignation as manager.

Although the club has managed to win only nine and tie one of 39 Western Hockey League games this season and Kilburn has been asked to remain with the club as a player, the decision hit the city's hockey fans like a bombshell.

And they were beginning to take sides in the issue today.

WANT FULL STORY

First definite reaction was a move by a group of shareholders to petition for a general meeting of the membership to obtain a full explanation of the reasons behind the ouster move.

Club president Dr. Andy Reid said the directors believed they had taken the right course to assure the future of good hockey in Victoria. One of the main reasons for the decision, he said, was the Cougars' failure to play up to its "paper strength" in WHL competition this season.

"We might have let the matter slide until the end of the season," Dr. Reid said today, "but we have a responsibility to the shareholders and believe we have taken the right course."

"I will welcome a chance to meet the shareholders and explain the reasons behind our decision. And I will be pleased to answer any accusations made by Kilburn. This was not a hasty decision. We have been considering it for the past month."

It has been known for several weeks that some directors believed Kilburn was taking too much power into his own hands and not consulting them on all his transactions. Some also blamed dissension on the club to Kilburn's inability to get along with all the players.

Announcement of the request for the resignation came as a surprise to most fans because Kilburn, more than any other man, provided the spark that ignited the drive for funds last summer which kept professional hockey in Victoria.

IKE REPLY 'GOOD ONE'

OTTAWA (CP)—Former external affairs minister Lester Pearson said today the line taken by President Eisenhower in reply to Soviet Premier Bulganin's call for a summit meeting "is a good one."

Mr. Pearson, a candidate for the Liberal leadership, told a press conference that he agreed that meetings should first be held "in the valley" before going to the summit.

John D. Plans Early Statement

OTTAWA (CP)—Russian Premier Bulganin, in his latest letter to Prime Minister Diefenbaker, says the Soviet would welcome the initiative of Canada in organizing negotiations between East and West on international problems, particularly disarmament.

"Here, in Moscow, the reports of the intention of your government to assist in organizing negotiations between the statesmen of East and the West on questions of disarmament and other international problems have not passed unnoticed," Bulganin said in the letter, delivered to Mr. Diefenbaker Friday by Soviet Ambassador Dmitri Chuvashin.

"Undoubtedly, we would welcome the efforts of the Canadian government in this direction as well as the initiative of Canada in drawing together the points of view of the parties on some or other international questions and, in particular, on the problem of disarmament."

Mr. Diefenbaker said in the Commons Friday the communication would be studied during the weekend and he hoped to make a comment on it early this week.

It arrived before Mr. Diefenbaker could get off a reply to another letter he received Dec. 13 from Bulganin. On each occasion, similar letters were sent to the United States and Britain and other NATO countries.

In the latest letter, text of which was released Sunday night by the Soviet Embassy here, Bulganin reiterated his plea for a summit conference of major East and West powers within the next two or three months.

Suspension of Nuclear Tests

He proposed the meeting discuss immediate cessation for a period of two or three years of hydrogen and atomic bomb tests, pledges by the U.S., Britain and Russia not to use these weapons, creation of an atomic buffer zone in central Europe and a non-aggression pact between the NATO and Warsaw alliances.

"We hope," Bulganin said, "that your Mr. Diefenbaker's recent statements as well as statements of the members of your government on the readiness of Canada to carry on negotiations with the U.S.S.R. will predominate the favorable attitude of the Canadian government toward the proposal advanced by us for the convocation of a meeting of leading statesmen."

Mentioning by name Liberal leader Louis St. Laurent, CCF leader M. J. Coldwell and Social Credit leader Solon Low, he said they also had spoken in favor of negotiations with Russia.

In the Commons last Tuesday Mr. Diefenbaker said it would be inappropriate for this country to suggest a summit conference without prior consultation between Canada and her Western Allies.

There would have to be prior certainty that a summit conference would be generally beneficial.

Unlike the first letter to Mr. Diefenbaker—which the prime minister described to reporters as "propaganda"—Bulganin's second communication made no mention of trade talks between Canada and Russia or direct negotiations between the two countries aimed at improving the international climate.

Nor could it be considered as threatening as the first letter, which spoke at fair length of the consequences of any storing of U.S. atomic and hydrogen weapons on Canadian territory.

PM Orders Study Of U.S. Old Age Plan

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Diefenbaker today announced an immediate study will be made to see whether aspects of the United States old age security program can be adapted in Canada in addition to present old age pensions.

He informed the Commons that Professor Gordon Huson of the University of Western Ontario has been named to carry out the study.

Mr. Diefenbaker said a preliminary examination shows the U.S. system provided higher benefits, paid at an earlier age, for a wider range of benefits.

The U.S. plan was financed on average contributions by each person of $27.08 a year—"not much more than the average contribution by Canadians of $22.70 for the old age pension" of $55 monthly to all 70 and over.

The prime minister emphasized that any changes in the Canadian program would be in addition to the present pensions. He said the U.S. plan of old age and survivor insurance provides average monthly benefits on retirement of $76 for single workers, $128 for married couples without dependents and $65 for aged widows.

Resolutions To Revamp Liberal Stand

OTTAWA (CP)—Former transport minister George Marler today forecast that Liberal party concepts and policies will be reshaped in 15 to 20 major resolutions approved at this week's Liberal leadership convention.

Mr. Marler said two resolutions suggest Canadian recognition of Communist China. However, he said he would be "very much surprised if the convention decided to deal with that particular subject."

'Bad Manners, Thoughtlessness' In Deals With Canada—Acheson

NEW YORK (BUP)—Ex-secretary of state Dean Acheson called on the United States today to stop treating Canada with "thoughtlessness, ignorance and bad manners."

Acheson, who served as head of the state department in the Truman administration, appealed for a greater export of American capital to unify the free world through industrial growth and a common belief in practical ideals of liberty. He said the people who are willing to work the hardest ultimately will win the cold war.

Acheson's appeal was made in a book published today, "Power and Diplomacy."

In one facet of his general review of the west's position, he said that "all is not going well in our hemisphere. In Canada resentment against the United States public policy and private interests has assumed considerable proportions."

Acheson said Americans think it a compliment to tell Canadians they are just like Americans without realizing that "our economic embrace is stifling. To be sure it has produced an unprecedented boom in Canada, but also considerable worry as to who, before long, is going to own Canadian resources and be in a position to direct Canadian economic policy. All this calls for special thought and manners in living with a neighbor whose population, less than a tenth of ours, is as vigorous and capable as any in the world; whose geographical position and resources are of an importance which cannot be exaggerated, and whose basic interests are closer to ours than those of any other country."

Acheson quoted in the book at length from speeches of ex-minister of external affairs Lester B. Pearson and Prime Minister John Diefenbaker as to their concern about the drift of Canadian-American relations, and the great need for more Canadian exports to the U.S.

U.S. Missile Program Rushed

WASHINGTON (AP)—Defence Secretary Neil McElroy told Congress today the U.S. hasn't got positive evidence that Russia is ahead in long-range ballistic missiles—but that it is acting on that basis.

Because time is critical, McElroy told the House of Representatives armed service committee, the defence department is pushing ahead with the most promising weapons programs. He said it expects within the next 18 months to begin producing the Polaris missile, a 1,500-mile weapon capable of being fired from a submerged submarine.

McElroy also said provision for a third launching base for intercontinental ballistic missiles is included in the new budget for the year beginning July 1. No location was given in the version of McElroy's testimony made public.

plus $2,500,000 more than it now has on hand for 1958-59.

2. A $500,000,000 reserve fund to rush development of any breakthroughs in the weapons field together with authority to switch $200,000,000 around within the armed services "in order to take prompt advantage of new developments."

3. For foreign military and related aid, $3,868,000,000 to be spent in the coming fiscal year. This is a $119,000,000 increase over the current figure.

All told, the new budget calls for 1958-59 spending at more than $1,000,000,000 over the current rate even allowing for recent speedups in missile and other weapons programs. And the current spending program, running at $72,800,000,000 a year, is the highest in American peacetime history.

SOME CUTS TOO
Eisenhower called for cuts as well as increases in the new budget. For the armed forces, he recommended a $1,500,000,000 slash in manpower, installations and older type weapons, including B-52 bombers and some other aircraft.

And he proposed "curtailments, revisions or eliminations" of many non-military programs, ranging from federal payments to farmers to expenditures for veterans' services and benefits.

Eisenhower said: "Americans have a tradition of uniting in action when their freedoms and welfare are threatened. We do not shirk our clear responsibilities when new challenges arise."

"I feel confident that this budget expresses the way in which the American people will want to respond to the promises and dangers of the dawning age of space conquest."

SMALL BUSINESS AID
And, as the White House forecast earlier, no general tax increases are proposed. Eisenhower suggested, in fact, some tax cuts to aid small business, while recommending higher taxes on aviation fuels to reduce the cost to the government of its activities in the air traffic field.

Likewise, the president included in his message a previously announced plan for a four-year $1,000,000,000 program aimed at helping the states improve education standards.

He came up with at least one recommendation which, like his foreign aid plan, is sure to meet opposition: A five-year extension of the reciprocal Trade Agreements Act, with more power for the president to make tariff-cutting agreements with other countries.

dissolve. Parliament soon in any case but as he showed by his careful statements last week is hoping that the Liberals will play into his hands by providing the desired excuse for an early poll.

Without that excuse Mr. Diefenbaker's constitutional position is beyond question. He can get a dissolution at any moment. In a political sense, however, he must demonstrate to the voters that the delay of a dissolution and an election campaign are justified when many great national problems are crying for immediate action. Lacking Liberal co-operation it will be hard to justify such costly delay.

Hence the whole course of events beginning next week must depend primarily on Mr. Pearson in his first vital decision as a party leader. Probably no one but Mr. Pearson knows today how the trump card will fall after his opening speech.

But no one in Ottawa has any doubt on two points—first, that Mr. Pearson will be chosen Liberal leader and, second, that with his elevation the whole posture of the Liberal party will change from masterly delay to an open furious assault on the government.

Strategists of the Liberal party believe that the success or failure of that assault and the outcome of next week's struggle in Parliament will have a powerful, perhaps a decisive, effect on the approaching election.

Meanwhile, the Liberal party's problem at its convention is the precise opposite of that faced by the Conservative convention a year ago. The Conservatives paid little attention to policy and, dissatisfied with their hastily-built platform, quickly locked it up, refusing to mention it in the June election. Their only interest was in the fight for leadership won by Mr. Diefenbaker.

The Liberals take Mr. Pearson's choice for granted and are concentrating on policy. Here one wing of the party is tempted to outbid the government in promises of more spending, lower taxes, and an easier life for everyone, but it seems likely from the secret counsels of the last week that this temptation will be rejected in favor of a more candid platform.

In any case, platform will be subordinated to personality in the election. The Liberal campaign as at present conceived will be built primarily on Mr. Pearson as a man uniquely fitted for government and the most popular Liberal since Wilfrid Laurier.

Ike Seeks Hike In Foreign Aid

WASHINGTON (AP)—Congress was urged today to provide $3,940,000,000 in "critically needed" new foreign aid funds to offset Communist Russia's threats to attack, subvert and terrorize free nations.

President Eisenhower, making the request in his budget message, estimated foreign aid spending during the year starting July 1 at $3,868,000,000 up $119,000,000 from the current year's figure. Much of the spending will be from money already appropriated.

The fund, carrying the aid program into its 12th straight year, would pay for military, economic and technical assistance to 50 or more countries.

The request includes $1,800,000,000 for military assistance, $865,000,000 in defence support for economic help to countries getting the arms aid, and $1,273,000,000 in other economic and technical assistance including easy-payment development loans.

Eisenhower also gave notice he might ask for an additional $200,000,000 to begin furnishing intermediate range missiles to European Allies who agree to base them on their territory.

Sloan Appointment Draws Criticism Of CCF Members

VANCOUVER (CP)—The appointment of former chief justice Gordon Sloan as government adviser on forestry matters was criticized here by two CCF party members.

Malcolm Bruce of Stanley Park CCF Club said Sunday night the appointment was "a sham, a fraud, from beginning to end" and meant only "another drain on the taxpayer."

Point Grey CCF club member Cliff Freer said it was "a frantic effort to divert the public's attention from the government's conduct in forestry matters."

Both men spoke at an open forum called to discuss the appointment.

In reply Bert Price, Social Credit MLA for Vancouver-Burrard, told the forum the government was fortunate to obtain the services of the former chief justice, whose knowledge of forestry is second to none in the province.

U.S. TO EARN $1.5 MILLION FROM SEAWAY

WASHINGTON (AP)—The St. Lawrence seaway is expected to earn $1,500,000 in tolls for the United States in the first 2½ months of operation, President Eisenhower said today in his budget for the fiscal year starting July 1.

He also estimated that the operating costs of the U.S. part of the international waterway will be about $1,500,000 a year, or $125,000 a month.

The seaway, now under construction, is scheduled to be opened to its maximum 27-foot depth in April, 1959.

Fuchs Resumes Trek, 150 Miles From Pole

WELLINGTON, N.Z. (Reuters)—British explorer Vivian Fuchs reported today that his trans-Antarctic expedition had reached a point 155 miles from the South Pole.

A message received at Scott base said the British party had resumed the trek today after a late start caused by bad weather.

The message did not make clear what progress the party has been making, but it appears to be between 20 and 30 miles a day.

Weather was bad at the South Pole Sunday, with winds up to 45 miles an hour, which is high for that station. The temperature was 5.5 degrees Fahrenheit.

IN PARLIAMENT

Members' Eyes Focus On Liberal Parley
(From Times News Services)

Political eyes in the capital will be focussed this week on Ottawa's Coliseum rather than the Commons.

The Coliseum will be the site Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday of the Liberal leadership convention.

The House will be the site of debate on government legislation which has already received an initial airing.

Scheduled for discussion today and Tuesday are a government's proposal for a $30,000,000 loan to New Brunswick for the Beechwood power development on the St. John River; for federal financial assistance to the Atlantic provinces for power development from coal-burning steam plants; for price supports on farm products.

The House will adjourn at 6 p.m. Wednesday until 11 a.m. Friday so that Liberal members, all delegates to the leadership convention, may attend nomination proceedings and election of their new leader to succeed Rt. Hon. Louis St. Laurent.

The House occupied itself Saturday with discussion of fisheries department estimates. The debate was interrupted for 65 minutes in mid-afternoon by a power failure in the Centre Block of the Parliament Buildings which left the Commons chamber in darkness.

The Commons relies on artificial light because, years ago, canvas was placed over its high windows to prevent the sun glaring in members' eyes.

Solid Opposition in Power Project

Two main points emerged from the debate: Opposition by the government as well as the other political groups—to any power development on British Columbia's Fraser River which would injure the salmon fishery; and uneasiness that the United States may impose quotas and higher tariffs on Canadian fish imports.

Fisheries Minister J. Angus MacLean ruled out any possibility of the Progressive Conservative administration supporting any early large-scale power developments on the Fraser.

Mr. MacLean said the problem of providing more power from hydro sources in southwestern B.C. might be a passing one. A new thermal plant planned for the Vancouver area would remove some of the pressure.

Scouts Form Guard At Leader's Funeral

A full turnout of uniformed boys of Third Victoria and Victoria Chinese Boy Scout troops formed a guard of honor at the funeral Saturday of their assistant Scoutmaster, Gustafson.

Swedish and Norwegian associations, the carpenter's union, and the Eagles also were represented at the large funeral.

Services were conducted at McCall Bros. Funeral Chapel. Burial was at Hatley Memorial Gardens.

ACCIDENTAL. Earlier the same day a coroner's jury decided the electrocution of Mr. Gustafson, 51, was an accidental death.

Mr. Gustafson had been working Jan. 6, with a crane on an Oak Bay construction project when the crane touched a high voltage power line. Two other workmen were shocked, but recovered.

U.K. to Lift Secrecy Veil On H-Bomb

LONDON (AP)—"Important" results of British experiments on harnessing the power of the H-bomb are due to be made public late this month, ending for the present a reported secrecy wrangle between London and Washington.

Confirming widespread reports, the United Kingdom's atomic energy agency announced Sunday that reporters will be invited to tour the Harwell atomic energy research station and that scientific reports will be published in the magazine Nature.

The announcement is expected Jan. 24.

British newspapers have claimed that Admiral Lewis Strauss, chairman of the United States Atomic Energy Commission, forced a delay in the official announcement under a U.S.-British agreement to co-ordinate the declassifying of secret information about the project.

The Sunday Observer says the U.S. asked for a delay so its scientists could catch up with their British opposite numbers.

Ike Willing to Meet Bulganin on Conditions

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower has held open the door to an East-West summit conference with word to Russia's Premier Bulganin that "I am ready to meet" on two conditions.

Eisenhower's reply to Bulganin also urged Soviet agreement at this "decisive moment in history" to a far-ranging peace program that would end nuclear weapons' manufacture and testing, curtail production of space-age missiles and dedicate outer space to the peaceful uses of mankind.

Any top-level meeting, the president told the premier, must be preceded by an airing of issues in negotiations among diplomats and foreign ministers. Furthermore, he said, these negotiations must show "good hope of advancing the cause of peace" by agreements at the summit. He thus rejected Bulganin's call last week for a meeting in three months.

DECISIVE TIME SEEN

Bulganin's reaction to the president's terms could be decisively negative, but diplomats here believe that an active period of East-West diplomacy may be opening up. They hold this view even though basic issues between Russia and the West continue deadlocked and much now being said on both sides gives an appearance of a gigantic propaganda battle.

Eisenhower's 4,000-word personal letter showed no essentially new propositions in American foreign policies but it succeeded in stating these policies positively rather than negatively at many points. It obviously was written for the eyes of the world as well as Bulganin, and state department officials hoped it would overcome recent gains in Soviet propaganda.

CORDIAL BUT FIRM

Eisenhower's tone was cordial throughout, but at times he struck hard at Soviet behavior as well as Soviet proposals for settling outstanding cold war issues. He rejected or discounted about eight proposals Bulganin had put forward, including those for an East-West non-aggression pact and a German-Polish-Czech zone free of nuclear weapons.

GREAT ERROR

He accused Russia of a "great error" in failing to reunify Germany as agreed at the Geneva conference in 1955. He blamed the cold war on the expansionist policy of Soviet Communism.

In London, official Britain welcomed today President Eisenhower's reply to Russia's proposal for East-West summit talks, but the American leader got a cool reception from most British newspapers.

Western European papers generally express relief that Eisenhower's reply keeps alive the prospect of a summit conference, but the feeling is expressed in some quarters that he may have defined too carefully the conditions under which he would attend such a meeting.

A spokesman at the foreign office here said Britain "warmly welcomes" the United States message which "contains a number of constructive proposals which if accepted could move us forward on the road to peace."

Paris papers were kind, with Figaro, Conservative, predicting that the French public will greet the president's reply with "satisfaction and relief."

Italian papers have given Eisenhower's letter wide play, with the non-Communist press reacting similarly to journals in other European countries.

RENEGADE U.K. DIPLOMAT NOW 'HOMESICK'

LONDON (AP)—Guy Burgess, one of two high-ranking British diplomats who defected to Russia is reported anxious to come home.

Michael Ingrams, a television official who spent four months in the Soviet Union making films, says Burgess is asking British visitors whether he would be accepted here.

Donald Maclean, the other diplomat who crossed the Iron Curtain with Burgess, also came back into the news after months of obscurity. The mass circulation Sunday Pictorial reported he has split with his 41-year-old American wife, Melinda, and that she wants to get their three children out of Russia.

From Our Abundance

WITH THE ANNOUNCED PROVISION of $50 millions worth of wheat to southeast Asian countries, Canada inaugurates an important addition to existing Colombo Plan aid.

The original Colombo Plan called for a six-year program of assistance by participating donor countries. That initial program will close with completion of the 1957-58 grants. The supplementary grants and loans announced last week will supply food to countries needing it—a different form of aid from the usual Colombo assistance.

The basic help provided by Canada and other Commonwealth nations under the plan consists of capital investment and technical assistance. As originally designed, Canada's help took the form of an annual $25 million gift for capital improvement, and a $400,000 appropriation for training Asian engineers and technicians either at home or in Canada. For the last two years this has been raised to $34,400,000.

The primary objective of Colombo Plan aid has been to make the receiving countries self-supporting. They have been provided with the means to build power stations, irrigation projects and transportation systems, rather than with merely stop-gap aid in the form of consumer goods.

Thus, in the case of India, Canada has furnished several million dollars worth of trucks and buses for an improved transportation system in the Bombay area. On another occasion 50 locomotive boilers were sent. A multi-million-dollar power and irrigation project in Assam was another Canadian program. An atomic reactor was provided.

Along with such concrete aid goes the technical education to enable Indian and other workers to handle the new equipment. Thus several hundred Indian students have been brought to Canada for special courses, while numbers of Canadian technicians have been sent to India for on-the-spot assistance. Similar programs have been followed in the case of Pakistan, Ceylon and other participating countries.

But the Tap's Still Shut

WHILE PRESIDENT EISENHOWER listed increased foreign trade as a major United States objective in his state of the union message, the tap is still turned off to prevent Canadian oil from going into that country.

The position is anomalous. It has been so recognized by outstanding American newspapers in their comment on the original decision to exclude the Canadian product in order to maintain oil development in the United States "for defence purposes."

"It is a strange paradox," the Washington Post remarked recently, "when an action taken in the name of national defence fractures relations with a friendly neighbor, penalizes the American consumer and stirs the ugly prospect of a trade war. Yet these seem to be the consequences of the (U.S.) government's decision to tighten still further the 'voluntary' program for curtailing crude oil imports. . . . The chief victim, unhappily, is Canada, a nation already considerably aroused by this country's world trade policies."

To this the New York Journal of Commerce added: "The new import curb has crystallized the worst crisis in United States relations with Canada in years."

The comment of Mr. Raymond Vernon, formerly acting director of the Office of Economic Defence and Trade of the U.S. Department of State, in a letter to the New York Times, underscored the seriousness of the United States action.

"The Administration's decision to restrict the West Coast's imports of foreign oil illustrates with uncomfortable clarity one of the elements that have created the 'crisis in confidence' in the NATO alliance."

"It indicates why foreign public opinion has developed the habit of placing a heavy discount on American affirmations of economic and political solidarity with the rest of the free world. And it explains why Americans who support closer economic ties with the free world are tending to receive the Administration's assertions of support for these positions with a pronounced reserve."

These are opinions from informed United States sources. They create an interesting background against which President Eisenhower's eight-point program of "safety through strength" has been read—particularly the point calling for increased foreign trade.

Canada, which has already registered its protest against plugging the pipelines, will watch with interest any developments which indicate an application of the pronouncement for trade expansion—an expansion which cannot be a one-way process.

Fiddling the Blues

WHEN THE GYPSY MAKES HIS violin cry—if he does these days—the expression of sorrow reflects the sentiments of Czech violin-makers.

Next to West Germany, Czechoslovakia makes more violins for export than any other country. And the fiddle export has been dented all out of shape.

This, say the experts, is the result of a global rock 'n' roll craze. People aren't buying fiddles as they used to.

Presumably the drop in output will have a more severe effect on the mass-produced instruments of Luby than on the creation of craftsmen who may turn out 10 instruments a year. If the craftsmen can be saved, perhaps the present recession in demand may cause relatively negligible harm. It is not hurting the Czech export trade to any great extent because the ingenious Czechs have turned immediately to the production of guitars.

In time the violin will no doubt make its comeback. Then the experts will be able to say that 1957-1958 trends were just another example of fiddling around with the markets—a popular activity of the day.

Unfair to Small Waders

STYLISTS IN EUROPE HAVE decreed the demise of the old-fashioned rubbers and galoshes. Now milady moves out on a wet day in special shoes with high molded latex soles and heels that keep her dainty feet above the streaming pavement.

This is progress, no doubt. But we hope the rubber footwear hasn't been eliminated completely. There is something traditional that we'd hate to lose in the picture of the child, in gumboots or galoshes, pushing pensively through a puddle.

What fun is left for a youngster on or after a rainy day, if he can't wade through the standing water as generations before him have waded? What excuse will he have for returning home with soaking feet if he can't say he didn't know the shallows were deeper than the tops of his rubbers?

On Thin Ice

GOOD OR BAD?

By B. A. TOBIN

By the Light of the Moon

THERE has been considerable comment lately on the subject of moonlighting. It seems that this is the practice of employed people taking extra jobs after hours—the carpenter works all day at the plant and then goes out to build a cabinet for somebody; the plumber finishes his eight hours for his employer and then spends the evening putting in a sink for somebody down the road.

The objection is that these extra-curricular activities deprive other tradesmen of employment; give one man a job-and-a-half while the other fellow has none at all. And often the work is done at less than the going rate. Some unions have even taken steps to expel members who double up in this fashion.

I think there is more than just an economic argument involved in all this. The economic angle is there, too, of course. But the wider issue is the place of the individual in the society we are evolving—his right to do as he likes with his own free time or his responsibility to observe certain rules laid down by his fellows.

It's not a question that will be settled easily or quickly. There are dangers on both sides of the argument: the dangers deriving from coercion on the one hand, the dangers of selfishness on the other.

A British welfare worker who was visiting here the other day showed how this sort of thing can work both ways. He told how in his community youth clubs had been organized. The groups hold dances and get-togethers and have a good time. But they have another function, too.

With one leap they'd become part of a vast, behind-the-scenes network of folk who are doing something for somebody else and liking it. It's moonlighting, but it shines pretty brightly.

A good investment. For that matter, no community could begin to buy the benefit that accrues to the voluntary helpers, either. They get a non-monetary return from their work that would be hard to appraise in actual figures. But it's large.

This fact is so well known that it is surprising that a comparatively few citizens win the reward. You would think that hundreds of people who gripe at the dullness of their daily round would jump into a non-mercenary moonlighting career with both feet.

drops into the Red Cross blood clinic and donates a pint of life for somebody. He's moonlighting, he's doing the professional blood donor out of a job, but he's doing much more than that. And he would welcome some help next time the clinic stages a two-day session here.

There are dozens of organizations in Greater Victoria that depend on moonlighters for their support. What's moonlighting for one person may turn out to be sunlight for another. For if all the charitable work in the community depended on paid workers there wouldn't be very much done. The community couldn't begin to pay for all the workers that are needed.

Under the proposed deal a strip of land on Pandora Avenue is to be reserved for street widening. The value of this alone is worth a great deal to the city. An article in the Times of June 7, 1933, stated that some twenty years before this date the city paid $70,000 for a strip twenty feet wide at the corner of Douglas and Pandora. And a sum of $23,000 was paid for a seventeen-foot strip at Pandora Avenue and Blanshard Street.

Why Gavin Despaired

HUMAN motives are always mixed, and there may have been personal motives in Lt. Gen. James Gavin's despairing decision to retire from the U.S. Army. Gavin was certainly aware, for example, that President Eisenhower bitterly resented Gavin's outspoken role in the army's behalf.

The President's resentment inevitably meant that Gavin could not be Chief of Staff at least as long as Eisenhower was President. Gavin is generally regarded as the army's most brilliant senior officer, and the feeling of being blocked off from the top army post cannot have been pleasant. But there were other, impersonal, and far more important reasons for Gavin's despairing gesture.

One way to understand those reasons is to go back and examine the photographs which appeared in the newspapers and magazines of the parade of the Red Army in Moscow on Nov. 7, the fortieth anniversary of the Bolshevik revolution. With the space satellites already launched, all sorts of new surprises were anticipated.

When the Soviets failed to hit the moon with a hydrogen bomb, or bring the dog Laika down alive on Red Square, there was a certain sense of anti-climax, and the parade was billed as "unsensational." But to a professional infantry soldier like Gavin, the parade was by no means unsensational.

The Soviets actively encouraged Western photographers to take pictures of their tanks, troop carriers, tactical missiles, and so on, much as Hitler used to do in the pre-Munich days. The reasons were similar. In virtually every category the ground warfare weapons displayed by the Soviets were decisively superior to anything in the possession of the United States or its allies.

One qualified military specialist, Garrett Underhill, has already described some of the Soviet infantry weapons in an article for the Washington Post. To cite a few examples:

During the November 7 parade, the Soviets displayed huge "flak tanks," each mounting a pair of powerful new anti-aircraft guns. The only American counterpart is a light tank-mounting much less powerful guns first designed in 1936. The NATO ground forces lack even this protection.

The Soviets also displayed a new, improved heavy tank, with heavier armor and artillery than anything in the American arsenal. They are known to have several thousand such tanks. This country is building 300 heavy tanks, the last of which will not be delivered until 1959.

The tactical missiles displayed by the Russians were clearly both more powerful and more mobile than anything in the American forces. The Soviets even have new, lightweight rifles and other infantry weapons, which render their individual soldiers far more mobile than American troops.

In short, the Soviet ground troops are unquestionably far better equipped than their American or NATO counterparts. The story does not end there.

As Gavin said, there were twenty-seven divisions in the American Army when he came to Washington, and there are fifteen now. What he did not say is that only nine of these divisions—a ridiculous number for a great power—are fully equipped and combat-ready.

The official estimate of 175 Soviet divisions is probably exaggerated. But the Soviets undoubtedly have 65 armored and mechanized divisions, fully equipped for atomic war, plus an equal number of infantry divisions, all resting on a huge mobilization base.

The Galt report, the Rockefeller Fund report, and all other competent authorities have stressed that the ability to fight limited wars is as important an element in the world power balance as the ability to fight suicidal all-out nuclear wars.

Yet throughout the presidency of that product of the army, Dwight D. Eisenhower, the army has been the Pentagon's stepchild. There have been no Sputniks to dramatize Soviet superiority in ground warfare, but that superiority is incontestable.

Despair Shared

It may be charged that the army leaders—notably Gavin himself—have been too eager to expend the army's resources on such things as space platforms. It may also be charged—with justice—that the army's proportion of men to combat units is still much too high. Yet if one examines such facts as those listed above, it is easy to understand Gavin's despair, which is shared by many other dedicated officers.

For the rest of us, it might be well to remember that the world has not seen its last infantry battle, and to remember also Gen. Gavin's warning: "These are your sons and brothers. We don't bring them into the army to die. If anyone is to die, we want it to be the other guy. We've got to give them the equipment they need."

As Our Readers See It

Money vs. Duty?

Outstanding in sacred feats while in office is the bold strategy of winning Gordon Sloan from the bench at a fantastic wage that paralyzes reasonable thought.

This money, paid by the electors, could not have been "needed" by Mr. Sloan, and is out of all proportion to the position he has accepted in exchange for that edifice in the realms of justice he had creditably achieved.

As Forestry Advisor his position carries little risk—if any. His advice will, of course, be sound. But even the forests themselves must be murmuring at his desertion of high office towards mammon; and at the moment we observe former Justice John V. Cline deserting down the same path, to the now "highest paid" job in B.C.'s lumber industry.

Disquieting as these 'specific' cases are, this is a trend towards money versus duty—Mr. Sloan's expressed explanation towards 'public service' is ridiculous tied to the tag of $50,000 per year.

Tribute

May I, on behalf of the Swedish and Scandinavian people of Victoria, express, through the medium of your column, a tribute to the late Mr. Sig Gustafson, whose untimely death has shocked all of us who knew him so well.

Sig was, without a doubt, the most valuable member of both the Swedish Group and the Scandinavian Brotherhood. Regardless of circumstances and obstacles, Sig was always ready and willing to help anyone in need. His radiantly happy face will long be sadly missed amongst the Scandinavian people of Victoria, and he will always be remembered as a great guy!

Our deepest sympathy is extended in all sincerity to his sorrowing widow, Ruth, and their six young children.

'Tremendous Value to City'

As your front page editorial points out, the construction of a department store on the City Hall site by Woodwards Ltd. would be of tremendous value to the city.

If it comes to the point where it will be necessary for the city to decrease the price of the city-owned properties in order to induce Woodwards to purchase a few privately owned properties, even if these are priced at a high figure, it would seem that this would be justifiable under the circumstances.

Under the proposed deal a strip of land on Pandora Avenue is to be reserved for street widening. The value of this alone is worth a great deal to the city. An article in the Times of June 7, 1933, stated that some twenty years before this date the city paid $70,000 for a strip twenty feet wide at the corner of Douglas and Pandora. up such a fine opportunity to provide Victoria with one of the finest shopping centres of any city in North America, just for the sake of a few dollars.

With a high class shopping district from Fort Street to Herald Street on Government and Douglas Streets and with a new city hall on the civic centre site at Pandora Avenue and Blanshard Street, with the Arena a few blocks north and the proposed new courthouse a few blocks south, the increased property values of this area of some twenty blocks would bring in enough increase in taxes to justify the city council spending a considerable sum at this time to ensure the success of this project.

'No Meeting of Minds'

On the front page of your Jan. 4 is an item captioned: "Wicks fails to settle crippling pulp strike" stated as an explanation: "There was no meeting of minds."

It reminded me of an occurrence about four or five years ago over in England when a labor delegation interviewed the then Prime Minister, Sir Winston Churchill with a request for certain legislation.

Sir Winston quickly and brusquely told them: "Away with you, you employees and employers settle your own grievances between you. Don't come and bother the government. The less the government interferes the better for everyone." And furthermore, Sir Winston is recognized as a wise old bird, having spent an active life in and around politics.

That piece "The Sad Letter" by Joseph Alsop is well worth reading by everybody, for though quoting an American viewpoint, the same applies to us here in Canada.

The really serious aspect to me is that in any active war, we are capable of the utmost in sacrifices, stopping not at life itself, but in peace and for the welfare of our homes and country we seem to be actually blind and ignorant.

As an old man I could offer some suggestion which might work wonders and should be tried: "When any labor strike starts, the leaders or executive receive no pay, until the strike is over, then the leaders would taste of union members fare." I honestly believe if anyone years for prosperity, it will arrive by working not loafing or idling.

H. WYER,

Thank You, Victoria

The members of the Queen Alexandra Solarium Junior League would like to thank the people of Victoria, who, in the midst of a busy festive season took time out to remember the crippled children. Your generous donations are indeed appreciated.

We know that 1958 will be a wonderful year for the province of British Columbia and it will also be a wonderful year for the children at present in the Solarium at Cobble Hill, for they will move into their new home at Gordon Head. This has been possible through the generosity of many, and we know that we can rely on the citizens of Victoria to continue to support us in our work so that we may carry out our aim of "Serving the Crippled Child."

Despair Shared

It may be charged that the army leaders—notably Gavin himself—have been too eager to expend the army's resources on such things as space platforms. It may also be charged—with justice—that the army's proportion of men to combat units is still much too high. Yet if one examines such facts as those listed above, it is easy to understand Gavin's despair, which is shared by many other dedicated officers.

For the rest of us, it might be well to remember that the world has not seen its last infantry battle, and to remember also Gen. Gavin's warning: "These are your sons and brothers. We don't bring them into the army to die. If anyone is to die, we want it to be the other guy. We've got to give them the equipment they need."

Creature of the Mind

I DON'T understand column writing in the least. Sometimes it takes hold of me in the most peculiar way. And, in the nearly-four years since I got this job, a funny little man has come to me.

Not really come to me, of course. He's a creature of my mind.

I've only written about him three times in as many years. But I know a tremendous amount about him, and I'm growing quite fond of the poor little chap.

His name is Alfie. He's somewhere between 40 and 60. Not much to look at. Getting a little thin on top and a little thick in the middle.

There's a bit of Walter Mitty in him, a bit of Babbitt, a bit of Casper Milquetoast, a bit of Galahad, and a bit of David as he faced up to Goliath.

Basically, Alfie is a decent little fellow. He admires integrity and chivalry and all that's good in life. But he doesn't always have the courage to live up to the things he knows are right.

He compromises sometimes, and then feels ashamed.

For Alfie has his troubles. He lives in this long, low-slung house, drives a long, low-slung car, and is always struggling to keep one jump ahead of his debts.

His wife is rather domineering and sophisticated. She's taken up club work for women, and she doesn't really have much time for Alfie. For instance, the other night when the kids had gone off to a movie because they said that for Pete's sake there wasn't a thing to do at home, Alfie would have liked to sit down quietly, put his head in her lap, and just talk quietly about how he really felt. But his wife was rushing off to her evening class on home-making, so Alfie didn't get his little talk.

Mind you, Alfie's wife has a good defence. For Alfie's always been so busy with his work, that, once the honeymoon was over, he didn't really have much time for his wife. She had to make her own life or go quietly crazy.

But what I like about Alfie is that he takes his responsibilities seriously though he often thinks how lovely it would be to have no responsibility.

And he does so hate being pushed around. He hates other drivers who honk their horn at him if he's a second slow at the traffic light. He hates the sneering look on a red-faced parking meter. He hates having to fill out official forms. He hates being just a number in a file, just another face in the queue. He wants, desperately, to be an individual. And with every passing year, he feels that his individuality is being lost in the size and complexity of the modern world.

Actually, he'd like to leave the city and live in the country. He has these dreams about a little farm—brown eggs still warm from the hen, milk fresh from the cow, jugs of cream, strawberries glowing in their beds of golden straw. And, somewhere in this rural paradise, there'd probably be a sweet country girl, innocent and shy, who would listen to him adoringly and think him wonderful.

But the real Alfie can't dally with his damsel in the meadows. He's slugging it out in the world of business. Harried, chivvied, oppressed by questionnaires, by public relations, by committee meetings, by all the organizations he's got himself into because they are good for business, Alfie feels the cares of the world lying on his shoulders, and his lunch lying rather heavily on his stomach.

Sometimes, when he's feeling very low, Alfie trots off to his psychiatrist or takes in a round of golf.

But golf and his psychiatrist can't really help him. For Alfie is looking for the dream he once glimpsed clearly as a boy.

(And where the dickens did I get Alfie from? Because I can see him just as clear as clear can be).

LONDON LETTER

Scooter Sales Scoot Ahead

LONDON—This year the annual Motor Cycle Show was cancelled. The people in the industry decided that there wasn't enough that's new each year to show, so from now on the show will be held biennially.

And right there you have the key to the big headache the motor bike business is now suffering from. The Continental-style scooter has caught on like wildfire here. So much so that 12 British firms have found that the only way to fight it is to go into the scooter field themselves.

I don't know how popular the scooter is in Canada but one of the main reasons they have caught on here is that they give you a more comfortable ride than the motorbike has ever been able to provide. Being able to step into a comfortable seat instead of having to straddle the engine, as with a motorbike, means that women find it a practical vehicle to use. Also, with the engine in an enclosed compartment under the seat, that old bugbear of the motorbike—dirtiness—doesn't apply.

It seems strange that the motorbike has lagged so far behind the progress of other means of transport, from motor cars to air-planes.

Take a car of 30 years ago and put it beside a current model and you see a vast difference. But a vintage motorbike looks not a lot different from those that are being churned out of British factories today. The bright fellow who thought up the idea of a motorbike put a gas tank over an engine between two wheels, the front one of which had handlebars and the rear one a seat. Look at the motorbike of today and that is precisely what you see.

Spurred on by the popularity of these scooters from the Continent, the British motorbike industry has decided that at long last something should be done about the design of the vehicle. And the first of these "revolutionary" new motorbikes has been brought out by the Triumph firm. Only revolutionary thing visible is the addition of a cowl which partially covers the back wheel. No firm has yet taken the bold step of enclosing the engine and providing a protective shield behind the front wheel, as with scooters. Perhaps they feel they mustn't break with the tradition of motorbike riding being tough.

PRINCESS

Greater Victoria pioneers may meet Princess Margaret when she visits the city in July. This was the hope expressed by R. H. Hiscocks, chairman of the centennial pioneer register committee, when he reported Saturday that 125 bona fide pioneer residents of the city have been registered so far.

Mr. Hiscocks emphasized that only persons within the Greater Victoria area were eligible to register on the roll conducted by the Greater Victoria centennial committee.

IN OWN DISTRICT

"The same type of registers are being made up for pioneers across the province and each must sign the one in his own district," he said.

Two types of certificates will be issued to registered pioneers of the province—the first honoring persons born or living in B.C. prior to 1871 and the second honoring those living here since July 4, 1886.

Greater Victoria pioneers will be given badges for identification at centennial events. Registration forms are available at the Greater Victoria centennial committee office, suite 101, Yarrow Building; downtown office of Victoria Press, 1215 Broad, and the historic medal display in the Douglas Room, Hudson's Bay Company.

PIONEER POST

Mounties Seek Clue to Bombs

TRAIL, B.C. (CP)—Working on such evidence as an oatmeal carton, a paper bag, an oil can and three empty beer bottles, police spent the weekend seeking a clue to the source of unexploded bombs found Friday night in three West Kootenay movie houses.

The crude dynamite bombs were found in the Odeon Theatre here, the Castle Theatre in Castlegar and the Civic Theatre in Nelson.

Officers said every likely reason for the abortive bombing was being investigated, including the possibility the bombs may have been planted by Sons of Freedom Doukhobors, who have been blamed for several bombing incidents in the area in recent years.

"It is only by the grace of God that many people were not killed," said Staff Sgt. William J. Mackay of RCMP here.

CHECK ALL EVENTS

Meanwhile, officers adopted a cautious attitude to all public gatherings. They said every precaution will be taken when large crowds gather. Special checks were made at weekend sports events.

The fuse of each of the crude bombs apparently had been ignited but had gone out. The Castlegar and Nelson bombs were discovered Friday night and the bomb here was found Saturday morning. There were 1,500 people altogether in the three theatres.

NATO Channel for Talk With Russia---Pearson

NEW YORK (CP)—L. B. Pearson of Canada, 1957 winner of the Nobel Peace Prize, proposed Saturday night that NATO work out a system of new negotiations with Russia.

Pearson, former minister of external affairs for Canada, marked out a path for East-West talks when he appeared as principal speaker at the 14th annual dinner of the American Nobel Anniversary committee.

Pearson said: "I would suggest that the council of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization should agree on a channel through which negotiations with the U.S.S.R. might be proposed; on the subjects that might be suggested and their priorities and on the two or three Western governments that might conduct these discussions, while keeping the full council continuously informed of their progress."

More than 500 persons, including a number of Nobel prize winners in various fields, attended the dinner which also heard an address by Scotland's Lord John Boyd-Orr, who described as "stupid" some phases of the East-West quarrel.

Boyd-Orr, former head of the United Nations Food and Agriculture Organization and 1949 winner of the peace prize, proposed that as a beginning of an end to the cold war the U.S. and Russia and "their allies and satellites" chop 10 per cent from their defence budgets.

Sir Leslie Munro of New Zealand, president of the United Nations General Assembly, paid high tribute to Pearson in a speech and also said the world would be "poorer" without the moderation shown by the Canadian people and "governments."

Pearson took issue with Lord Bertrand Russell, another Nobel prize winner, who sent a message to the dinner urging secret East-West meetings at the summit level.

NO SECRECY

"I find it difficult to understand a summit meeting in secret between President Eisenhower, Mr. Khrushchev and 2,000 reporters," said Pearson.

He called for a "new initiative for negotiation," not a talk at the summit as the Russians propose, at least until a lot of work has been done "in the valley."

He appeared to disagree with a suggestion by Britain's Prime Minister Macmillan for an East-West non-aggression pact when he added: "Not necessarily by a mere negotiation and signing of a non-aggression pact which,

'NO POLICY MAKER'

Ike Okay if Bossed Says Ex-President

NEW YORK (AP)—Former President Truman said Sunday President Eisenhower was a great military commander because "he had someone to tell him what to do."

Truman also told reporters, "I do not think Eisenhower is a good policy maker, nor is he a good budget maker."

Interviewed in a hotel lobby, Truman said the president "was a great military commander in Europe and in NATO, when he had someone to tell him what to do."

A reporter asked Truman:

"Who told him what to do? Was it you?"

"The commander-in-chief," Truman replied.

"You were commander-in-chief," Truman was reminded.

"Yes," the former president said.

Truman said a good policy maker "is one who knows where he is going and carries out his program. Eisenhower doesn't carry out the policies that he proposes."

On the president's State-of-the-Union Message, Truman said Eisenhower "is about three years too late with his proposals."

Wings Catch Habit

Detroit Wins Fourth in Row Under Sid Abel

By the Canadian Press

When Sid Abel played for Detroit Red Wings, he was used to a team with a winning habit.

His last season, 1951-52, Wings were in the middle of a streak of seven straight National Hockey League championships. That year they ended 22 points ahead of Montreal Canadiens and swept to the Stanley Cup in the minimum eight games.

When Abel returned to the Wings last week, as their coach, they were in fifth place and for much of the season had been playing tag with Chicago Black Hawks for last place.

For the 39-year-old native of Melville, Sask., the NHL's most valuable player in 1949, the situation had to change—or else.

FOUR STRAIGHT

Since the former centre officially took over from Jim Skinner, Jan. 3, Detroit has played four games—and won them all. The streak, highlighted by two victories this weekend, catapulted Wings into second place.

Detroit whipped Chicago 4-1 Saturday and followed with a 3-2 victory over New York Rangers Sunday. In other games Saturday, Montreal trounced New York 3-3 and Toronto Maple Leafs and Boston Bruins tied 2-2.

Sunday's other games saw Chicago whip Montreal 7-1 and Toronto defeat Boston 5-3.

Wings, ahead of the third-place Rangers by one point, trail Canadiens by 18 points.

HOME INJURED

Forbes Kennedy, who joined Wings from Chicago this season, paced Detroit Saturday. He scored two goals with Bob Bailey and Gordie Howe collecting one each.

Howe, who scored his 22nd, was injured and missed Sunday's game, his first absence after playing the last 235 Detroit games.

Bob's Bank Book Shows Big Boost

PEBBLE BEACH, Calif. (AP)—Big Bill Casper, a 28-year-old ex-sailor, banked a fat $5,500 today as his winning share of the Bing Crosby golf tournament.

With the $2,200 he picked up as third-place finisher in the Los Angeles Open, Casper's cash register has clicked at an average of about $592 per day for 1958.

The 215-pound Californian captured the $4,000 top prize Sunday in Crosby's 72-hole $50,000 event with an 11-under-par score of 277 for a four-stroke lead.

He collected another $1,500 as he and his amateur partner, former Stanford football star Bob Reynolds, finished second with a best-ball total of 261. That was a stroke off the $2,000 winning pace of pro Jay Hebert and former California amateur champ Roger Kelly.

Canada's lone player in the final round, Toronto's Al Balding, ended with a four-day total of 291, 14 strokes off Casper's pace. Balding was tied with four others for 15th place and picked up $650.

The two other Canadians entered in the tournament, Stan Leonard of Lacquette, Que., and Bob Wylie of Calgary, were eliminated after Friday's round.

Casper hit the most sensational shot of the tourney. It was a 135-yard belt with a No. 9 iron on the 11th hole that bounced twice and dropped into the cup for an eagle two.

Second place and $2,400 went to 24-year-old Dave Marr, who carded 281.

Deadlocked at 284 were Dow Finsterwald, Jack Burke, Jr., and Ken Venturi. Their payoff was $1,633.

Bob Rosburg, who led by five strokes at the halfway point, blew to an 81 Sunday for a 287 total that brought him only $975 in prize money.

Tied at 291 with Balding were Walt Burkemo, Lloyd Mangrum, Arnold Palmer and Don Whit.

DUNCAN (Special)—Gar

Taylor, Victoria, snapped Tony Folk's two-year Duncan Curling Club bonspiel skein at 20 games, Sunday night in the final of the Wadsworth primary event.

Five points on the ninth ended spelled victory for Taylor, as he took an 11-5 lead and hung on to win 12-8.

Earlier in the day, Folk beat Ole Panzer of Duncan, 9-7, on the twelfth end to take the Wright primary event for the second consecutive year. Last year, Folk won both primary events, going through the four-day spiel with 10 wins and no losses.

Taylor beat Harry Gulka, Nanaimo 10-4, and Folk beat Bob McIntosh, Victoria, 7-6 in the semifinals of the Wadsworth event.

To reach the finals in the Wright event Folk beat Glen Koffski, Nanaimo, Sask., 6-3, while Panzer beat Gulka 12-7.

In the semis of the Riversdale-Cushman secondary event Bob McIntosh, Victoria, beat Ron Harper, Duncan, 8-3, while Ron Webster, RCN, Victoria, beat Dr. Kirby Moysiey of Victoria, 10-8. The final round was a rout, as McIntosh skinned Webster 15-0 with the last two ends unplayed.

Art Gooder, Vancouver, beat Sam Rycroft's Victoria rink, 11-10, in 13 ends to take the Cowichan secondary event. Gooder reached the finals by defeating Larry Marshall, Victoria, 7-6, while Rycroft beat Pat Ryan, Duncan, by the same score.

The all-Duncan final in the consolation event also went 13 ends with the George Syrotuck rink, skipped by Charlie Strouger, beating Glen Harper, Duncan Curling Club ice-maker 10-8.

Sizzling Debate Takes Place Over Move to Oust Kilburn

Poor Club Record Given As Reason for Decision

Victoria Cougars, deep in the cellar of the Western Hockey League's Coast Division—20 points behind the third-place Seattle Americans—in their first season under community ownership, will complete the current campaign under a new general-manager.

President Dr. Andy Reid announced Sunday evening that Colin Kilburn, who had been playing manager of the club since the start of the 1956-57 season, had been asked to relinquish the manager's position. Fred Mackenzie will take over the manager's duties immediately, Dr. Reid said.

Following a meeting of the club's board of directors Sunday afternoon, Dr. Reid issued the following statement:

"At an extraordinary meeting of the board of directors of the Victoria Hockey Club (1957) Ltd. held Sunday, it was the unanimous decision of the directors that Colin Kilburn be asked to resign as general manager of the Victoria Cougars. "His playing contract has been retained by the club.

"Mr. Fred Mackenzie will take over the office of general manager, with the advice of the executive, and coach Pat Egan will take over full control of the players."

Dr. Reid said that the main reason the directors decided to ask Kilburn to resign as manager was the club's poor record—nine victories and one tie in 39 games—and a belief that the Cougars have suffered from poor player deals.

"We know we can't get good players in the middle of the season," Dr. Reid stated. "But the directors feel that better players should have been acquired before the season started."

Several Heated Debates During Meeting

"We have been considering this move for the past month. Fan support has been very encouraging and we could have let things slide, but we have a responsibility to our shareholders. We have not acted hastily. We have gone into all details of the situation carefully and believe we have acted for the best interests of the club."

It is understood that there were several heated debates during the two-hour closed meeting and that Kilburn declared he would not continue to play for the Cougars under the present board of directors.

Spearheaded Drive to Keep Hockey Here

When the club's owners returned the Cougar franchise to the WHL at the end of last season, it was Kilburn who spearheaded the drive that kept professional hockey in the city.

When the drive for funds, which eventually raised more than $32,000, was launched, Kilburn was installed as chairman of the fund committee. And when the club was incorporated shortly before the current season started, Kilburn was again hired as playing coach and general manager.

He asked to be relieved of the coaching duties after the club lost its first nine games and Egan was obtained from Nelson of the Western International Hockey League to serve as playing coach.

Dubbed the "Gold Dust Line," the unit quickly became one of the most popular and effective forward lines in the club's history and Kilburn, with his spirited and colorful play, has continued to be one of the league's most potent snipers during his years with Victoria.

He missed three games early in his first season with the Cougars and since then has appeared in 370 successive league games and 22 playoff contests.

Kilburn, who has never scored less than 22 goals in any professional season, had his best two years ago, when he collected 43 goals and 38 assists.

Following the death of general manager Fred Hutchinson in the summer of 1956, Kilburn took over the duties of player, coach and manager.

The executive, realizing that Kilburn was the driving force in the campaign to keep hockey in Victoria, expressed regret that they felt forced to ask for his resignation.

Some of the directors apparently felt that better leadership could have kept the community-owned Cougars in a contending position.

This morning, both Egan and Mackenzie said they had no statements to make at this time, although both hinted there would be some player changes in the near future.

Cougars will make their first appearance under the new management when they tackle Seattle at Memorial Arena at 8:30 p.m. Wednesday.

Royals Eat Well At Cougar Table

COUGARS 3, ROYALS 4

New Westminster Royals have atrociously. They act like rich relatives who accept gifts from starving cousins without so much as a polite "thank you."

Royals came a-visiting Saturday night, picked up their gift, and 3,101 onlookers wondered how long Victoria Cougars—the Western Hockey League's famed family—can keep it up.

The gift, it transpires, was a pair of goals that gave Royals a 4-3 victory in a wide-open, crowd-pleasing hockey game. It was New Westminster's 11th victory in 13 games against Cougars.

New Westminster's win total numbers 22 today (good enough to keep them five points behind the front-running Vancouver Canucks), so it is plain to see who is feeding the Royals.

Even some of the 100-plus Royals' Fan Club members who visited Victoria's Memorial Arena will admit today that Royals appeared to be a trifle fortunate. They received, among other things, another great net-minding chore from Bev Bentley and two third-period goals that pulled New Westminster from behind a 3-2 deficit.

There's nothing you can say about Bentley that hasn't been said before in any of several games against Cougars. But it should be said that Emile Francis also performed brilliantly in the Victoria nets.

Cougars appeared headed for victory until the Royals tied the score, at 3-3, in the third. Victoria defenceman Nels Bulloch and goalie Emile Francis battled in opposite directions at a loose puck from in front of the goal.

The puck bounced the wrong way—into the Cougar cage—and Royals took a new lease on life. The tally was credited to Max McNab, his second of the game.

Art Jones scored the winner, 70 seconds before the end of regulation time, when the Cougars fumbled a chance to clear the puck from their own zone.

COLIN KILBURN

'WILL NOT PLAY'

Colin Flails Club Methods

Colin Kilburn, relieved of his duties as manager of the Victoria Hockey Club (1957) Ltd. during a meeting of the club's executive directors Sunday afternoon, this morning reiterated his statement that he would not continue playing for the Cougars under the present board of directors.

Although he had been aware for some time that the directors were considering some changes, Kilburn was stunned by the course of action and bitterly denounced the abruptness of the decision and the procedure adopted.

Kilburn, who declined to discuss any plans for the future should he sever all connections with the Victoria club, said he believed the directors would receive strong protests from the city's hockey fans.

"I am very surprised at the procedure taken by our executive board of directors as, several of the directors were not notified of the meeting held Sunday afternoon," Kilburn said.

MacNutt's, one of the most improved teams in the Lower Island Junior and Juvenile Soccer Association, tossed a king-sized scare into the undefeated first division leaders Sunday.

Optimists appeared off to an easy win by moving into a 3-0 lead at the half. Before it was over, however, MacNutt's had the leaders hanging on the ropes. Optimists finally escaped with a 3-2 victory.

Robin Barnes paced Optimists' victory with two goals while John Youson added the other. Jim Tullock and Dave Pollard counted for the upset-minded Grocers.

Kickers, United Post Shutouts In Soccer League

Shutouts seemed to be the order of the day in Victoria and District Football League play, but Canadian Scottish missed the boat Sunday because of their rather extraordinary scoring ability.

Scottish, the circuit's highest-scoring combination, scored all the game's goals as they took over second place in the league standing with a 3-1 conquest of Gorge Hotel. The Scots' netminder missed his shutout when one of his own fullbacks inadvertently booted the ball into his cage.

Sunday shutouts were chalked up by Victoria Kickers, who blanked Heaneys 4-0, and Punjab United, who clipped Hungarians 5-0. Esquimalt tripped Tillamooks, the first-half schedule winners, 2-1 in the day's other game.

LEADERS IDLE

Playing at Central Park, Scottish took a 2-1 lead at the half on counters by Tappy Jones and Bill Ackinlose. Neil Stanley's second-half goal clinched matters and pushed Scots to within two points of Brodie's Bakery, idle during the weekend. The loss was the first for Gorge in the second half of the league schedule.

Kickers pushed in three second-half goals to win their game at Beacon Hill Park in handy fashion. Victory boosted Kickers in a tie for third with Esquimalt and Gorge. Tom Major, Herman Schmitz, Will Voigt and Dick Nellesjinn counted for Kickers.

George Paul scored both goals at Topaz Avenue Park to give Esquimalt the close win over Tillamooks, who trailed 1-0 at the interval. Morris Bunyan was the Tillamook marksman.

Punjab won their first game in much the same manner as Kickers. Leading 1-0 at the half, the United side insured victory with four second-half goals. George Brown and Frances Johnny each connected for two while Eugene Thorne added the fifth.

Gutoski Moves In High Gear On Playoff Path

It's a long way to the Canadian finals, but at the rate Tony Gutoski has been going, don't be too surprised if the Victoria Curling Club icemaker makes it.

Gutoski's foursome won their ninth straight game Saturday night since embarking on the path that leads to the Macdonald Tankard. His ninth victory, first game of the Vancouver Island (Zone 1) round-robin playdowns, was a 14-6 victory over clubmate Gerry Walls.

Earlier Saturday evening, Walls qualified as the second Victoria rink to reach the Island finals by edging Wilkie Gardner 10-9 in an extra-end thriller.

Walls and Gutoski join two rinks from each of the Duncan, Nanaimo and Alberni clubs in the Island playdowns. Rinks from each centre meet on home ice in an effort to save time when the round-robin series gets under way at Nanaimo next weekend.

SANDOWN OVAL TO GET 14-DAY MEETING AGAIN

Horse racing, with provincial and federal government approval, will cover 92 days this year at three tracks in the Vancouver and Victoria areas.

Racetrack operators have proposed a season opening May 16 at Exhibition Park, Vancouver, and concluding Oct. 6 at Sandown Park in Sidney, with 39 days in between at Lansdowne Park on Lulu Island.

Exhibition Park would also have 39 days, while Sandown would have 14. The dates include one charity day each at Exhibition and Lansdowne. The request would provide racing days almost identical with 1957.

MINOR HOCKEY

Too Many Take It As Matter-of-Fact

A night honoring Victoria's minor hockey players will be staged in Memorial Arena, January 27, as part of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association's Minor Hockey Week program.

The Minor Hockey Week, which the CAHA inaugurated last year with overwhelming success across Canada, is being staged in an effort to focus greater public attention on the players, programs and general benefits of minor hockey.

Victoria and District Minor Hockey Association president Doug Fletcher said six games will be played at Memorial Arena, the first starting at 7 p.m. Feature attraction will be a midweek all-star game between Victoria and Nanaimo.

Fletcher also said the HMCS Naden Band will be in attendance and Mayor Percy Scurrell will participate in opening ceremonies. Various door prizes will be given away and tickets for the event can be purchased at the Victoria Cougar ticket office.

GOOD TURNOUTS

DESERVE GOOD TURN

As Long as Fans Happy...

Let it not be said that Victoria's soccer players aren't appreciative.

Fan support at district matches has been "very good" in the eyes of players and Victoria and District Football League officials. There was, for example, a turnout of more than 600 at Royal Athletic Park for Saturday's exhibition between Victoria All-Stars and Sapperton Athletic Club of Vancouver.

The All-Stars rewarded their faithful with a handsome display of soccer, not to mention a 3-1 victory; that undoubtedly will bring the customers back for more.

The victory, convincing

proof that Victoria can keep pace with mainland entries, maintained All-Stars' undefeated streak against Vancouver teams. All-Stars now have won two and tied one against mainland opposition.

Bill Ackinlose, standout scorer with Canadian Scottish, paced the Stars with a pair of brilliant goals. Antol Major added the third while centre forward Larry Crisp tallied for Sapperton.

Tight Squeeze Again, But Vikings Roll Along

Victoria College Vikings, displaying some of the drive that they hope will carry them to a Canadian Junior Basketball championship, Saturday edged the University of British Columbia JV's, 75-72, at Victoria High School.

The victory, their second in a row over the UBC squad, extended Vikings' win streak to nine games.

Saturday's game was the first of a series of Saturday night exhibition matches that Vikings have scheduled in order to keep in trim for their bid for the Canadian junior championship early in March.

Vikings, defending Western Canadian junior champs, recently dropped out of the Victoria Senior "B" League due to the pressure of studies.

TOM LEADS WAY

Top man in the Viking attack was Tom English, who contributed 16 of his 26 points in the second half to keep College in the lead as the JV's pressed hard.

Also adding his share was lanky Bob Tomlinson, the big gun of the first half when he dropped in 17 of his 20-point total.

For UBC, Doug Jennings and Ivor Bruhaug combined in a spirited effort to improve on a poor first half. Down, 42-28, at the midway point, JV's Surviving are two sons, John and Albert, both of Victoria; two grandchildren and three great-grandchildren.

Picketing Stops
'Moonlighters'
On Housing Work

Mass picketing against "moonlighters" stopped weekend work at a new subdivision here.

Some 13 men working on houses in the 30-house subdivision on the old Lansdowne airfield went home Saturday afternoon after 50 members of the Vancouver Island Building

CHOSEN IN MAY

'Miss Victoria'
Can Go Far,
Win Good Prizes

Victoria's fairest will be chosen here in May.

Selection of "Miss Victoria," which carries with it numerous local prizes and the chance to compete for the "Miss Canada" title, and if the winner of the national competition to compete for the "Miss Universe" crown, will be made at the Junior Chamber of Commerce fair May 12 to 17.

She will be selected from eight finalists and as the winner will receive a $100 cheque, clothing valued at more than $400, and will be entered in the "Miss Canada" pageant later this year in Hamilton, Ont.

The princesses will each receive a $50 cheque and clothing prizes.

Entry rules are the same as for the "Miss Canada" event. Contestants must be single, have a minimum of three years high school, possess charm of face and figure, show a specific talent such as singing, dancing, or playing a musical instrument, be between the ages of 18 and 26 inclusive, and may be of either amateur or professional standing.

Talent will win 30 points, personality and deportment 25, beauty 25 and general intelligence 20 points.

If selected "Miss Canada," Victoria's entrant will receive a $1,000 scholarship, a trip across Canada and a trip to England and Europe, and a trip to Atlantic City for the "Miss America" contest which offers $30,000 in rewards.

She will get a $100 scholarship in Hamilton whether she wins or not.

NINTH YEAR

This will be the ninth year the Jaycees here have sponsored the brains-plus-beauty competition.

Five judges will be appointed to reduce the number of contestants to the eight finalists. These girls will be featured, two per night, in a fashion show at the fair, with all eight appearing the final night for the selection of Miss Victoria.

Entries should be phoned to Mr. Jamieson at 3-4521 or 5-3069.

CAREFUL SHOPPING

Knowledge of food values of meats, vegetables, fruits and cereals makes for economical shopping.

Trades Council set up placard lines around the project.

"None of them showed up Sunday when we returned," James Moffat, council president, said today. "If there is any evidence of work going on next weekend, the placard lines will have to be continued."

MEET TODAY

He added the council executive was to meet today to decide whether regular placard lines should be set up through the week as well.

Saturday he said the workers were "breaking down the conditions which we have established. They are putting legitimate employers at a disadvantage because they can't break even, competing with scab labor."

6,000 JOBLESS

Donald S. Bushell, council secretary, said an end to the weekend work was sought because of the current unemployment situation which saw almost 6,000 out of work here last week.

"If a man can't make a living on a 40-hour week, he shouldn't be in business," he said.

He said most of the "moonlighters" were working for less than union rates and "some of them are paid below the government minimum of $1.50 an hour for tradesmen."

Victor Midgley, carpenters representative, said the weekend work was a violation of the Hours of Work Act but the government had refused to act despite complaints.

He said part of the blame rested on immigration policy which allowed flooding of the labor market but he called for deportation of immigrants who "don't want to live our way of life and who break our laws."

NIGHT BIKING TALKS SET

Children in Greater Victoria schools will be warned this week of the danger of riding bicycles not equipped with proper lights and reflectors.

The lectures will be given by teachers of all grades in co-operation with a police commission campaign to cut down hazards of night biking.

Municipal school inspector John Gough said the school board sent a circular to all principals and teachers asking them to explain regulations on bicycle lights to the children.

Victorians Must Wait Until February for More Centennial Silver Dollars

Most Greater Victorians who want one of the centennial silver dollars immediately are out of luck until next month at least.

A survey of bankers today showed only token shipments, totalling 1,700, have arrived here so far—an average of slightly more than 60 for each of the 27 bank branches in the area.

The coins were snapped up "like hotcakes" as soon as they arrived last week, bankers said. They went to persons who had put in their orders early.

But waiting lists are still piled high in the memo files of each branch, ready for further trickles of the special coins expected this week and next.

One bank official said he did not expect an ample supply of the souvenir dollars until February when the Bank of Canada should be caught up on the initial orders placed by banks here.

Quick filling of orders was frustrated when the Mint in Ottawa had to revert to production of smaller coins during its first run of the special issue, it is understood.

However, one banker said initial shortages of special issues were normal occurrences.

The coins were shipped to Vancouver offices of the chartered banks where each bank, in turn, pro rated distribution among its B.C. branches. Next shipment to Vancouver is due Wednesday.

Bankers here agreed there was a "terrific" demand for the dollars, despite an Indian controversy over the totem pole design, which included warnings that the dollars were "death money."

The controversy took a new turn in Vancouver over the weekend when a prominent Indian disagreed with earlier suggestions that the design was of a mortuary pole that would put a curse on all who carried the coin.

Rev. D. S. Kelly, of the Haidas, said the design was a copy of a Haida house pole—the contention of Provincial Museum officials and historians.

But Guy Williams, of the Native Brotherhood of B.C., said the totem depicted has even more dire significance than his original charge that it was a funeral totem of the Tsimpsan tribe.

Williams claims it represents an unfaithful wife and a vengeful husband and has an unsavory legend attached to it; so unsavory that he will not reveal details.

However, it was understood that a delegation of the Native Brotherhood was to see Premier W. A. C. Bennett this afternoon to express support for the design.

A B.C. centennial committee official said Victoria's totem-carving Chief Mungo Martin had convinced the brotherhood leaders that the souvenir design was not a mortuary totem.

MONTE ROBERTS

Dots and crosses . . .

Morris Greene, who loves publicity the way a teenage boy loves spinach, will no doubt drop a large oil drum on my head for reporting this . . . but I do think the carping critics who object to the appearance of his ship-breaking pier at Ogden Point should know this . . . the carping critics, you may remember, objected because the "junk" on Morris' leased portion of the pier might not look pretty when St. Leilani docks here, at a flood-lighted mooring—for their information, the floodlights are being loaned and installed, free of charge, by—of course—Morris Greene. . . .

While we're on the waterfront, try this for a complicated co-incidence. . . . St. Baron Inverclyde is at Esquimalt for repairs . . . her master, Capt. Reid, is from Glasgow . . . an area well known to the McKeechie family, who are so prominent in shipping circles . . . when Alex McKeechie, Jr., learned that Capt. Reid was ill, he wondered who in the world his replacement might be . . . and it turns out to be Capt. Gibson, whose wife is a cousin of his mother, Mrs. Alex McKeechie, Sr. . . . to round it out, loading of the ship is in the hands of Empire Stevedoring, and is the particular responsibility of Alex McKeechie, Jr. . . .

The whimsical fictioneer who writes so entertainingly about wacky animals. . . . Don Tracy is his name . . . has done more for the expansion of Canada in one paragraph than Canada has been able to do in the last 100 years . . . to quote from a short story in "the SatEvePost": "there were people there from all 48 states and the 12 provinces of Canada . . ." Thanks for the dozen, cousin. . . .

It is with personal regret that I note the departure of announcer-operator Norm Pringle from CKDA . . . not that we could always see ear to ear in the matter of Elvis Presley, but still, Pringle produced pleasant entertainment, gave his all in various community efforts, and as a person is one of the best . . . also one of the most knowledgeable men I've seen around a radio console. . . . I hope you have your future taped the way you want it, Pringle . . . and play it at the right speed. . . .

The indefatigable Reb Mowat is on hand with another idea . . . suggests the famed old ex-London taxi Piccadilly Nell, now owned by Dusty Miller of the Princess Mary restaurant vessel, should be driven cross-Canada as a centenary promotion. . . . I'm surprised at Reb's lack of imagination . . . why not have the Princess Mary circumnavigate North America as a centennial project? . . . I take that back . . . where would everybody have coffee while she's away? . . .

I have been trying to avoid this, but Judy Boots Strack, the female-type doggie who lives at the house, insists . . . she says she's not hinting, but there are only two more days left to send her all those letters and cards for her birthday . . . which is Wednesday. . . .

TOPICS OF THE DAY

A champion "colorer" on Vancouver Island has sent his Times prize money to the "T-Bricks for Korea" fund. Young Rory Wong, Paldi, B.C., received the $1 prize for honorable mention in this paper's Christmas Coloring Contest last December.

He returned it with the note: "I would like very much to donate the $1 for Korean brick fund."

The money will be forwarded to the Unitarian Services Committee, sponsors of "T-Bricks" at Ottawa.

Saanich council will meet for its regular business session of the year tonight at 7:30 in the Royal Oak Women's Institute hall.

High Awards Won in East By Local Mink
Nine prizes and a record price for the sale of a single animal were scored at the annual Milwaukee International Mink Show, Jan. 10-12, by Owens & Son Mink Ranch, Colwood.

The local farm won the prize for the champion dark mink of the show, then sold the winning animal for $2,500, believed the highest price ever paid in the industry.

Also won were the championship for sapphires; third, fifth and tenth for pastel males and fifth for pastel females; second and fifth for taupe males and fifth for taupe females.

The ranch sent 14 animals to the show, considered the leading mink exhibition in the world, and they were shown by Bert Owens, partner with his son Bob in the Colwood farm and noted pigeon fancier.

The University Women's Club of Victoria will meet on Wednesday at 8 p.m. in the Business and Professional Women's Clubrooms.

Speaker will be Stickney Harris, lighting consultant with the B.C. Electric, and Willard Ireland, provincial archivist, will outline the future plans for Victoria College.

Ray Frederick Cote, Work Point, was fined $250 and his licence was suspended in city police court Saturday on a charge of impaired driving.

Police said Cote was involved in an accident, early Friday at the Fountain Circle, causing about $600 damage to his own and a parked car.

An Otter Point resident, Morris Corrie, was fined $25 in Sooke RCMP court Saturday for carrying an unlicensed firearm.

Capital Region Planning Board will be asked by Victoria council finance committee whether it can send someone to Ottawa for a course in urban renewal. The course, sponsored by Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation, a crown corporation, will outline how communities can obtain federal assistance in razing rundown areas in a city and launching modern redevelopment programs. The four-week course starts Feb. 3.

Winter rehearsal schedule of the Victoria Choral Society will be resumed Tuesday night at 7:30 p.m. at the Christ Church Cathedral Memorial Hall, Vancouver Street. Important work is planned and additional voices are required in all sections of the chorus, according to an announcement by the director, Graham Steed.

SILVER BUCKLE to replace one lost in Government House fire was presented to Lieutenant-Governor Frank Ross, honorary president of Colwood Trail Riders, by riders' new president, Wes Goddard, at Empress Hotel today. Elected Sunday night

COMET LANDS PEARKES HERE

A sleek De Havilland Comet I, first of its type ever to land at Patricia Bay Airport, arrived here Saturday with Defence Minister George Pearkes aboard, and will remain at the airport until Wednesday.

Extensively modified and operated by the RCAF, the big four-jet aircraft is a sister of the first jet aircraft to take to the air on commercial service. Its cruising speed is in the vicinity of 500 miles per hour.

Fair, Racing at Colwood Likely by Summer of '59

A first-class exhibition ground and race track likely will be in operation on the site of the old Colwood race track by the summer of 1959.

It probably will open immediately after the Pacific National Exhibition in Vancouver in August that year, giving exhibitors, stockmen and racehorse owners the opportunity of moving direct from the mainland to the Island.

"This will give stockmen and racehorse owners in other parts of Canada a much-needed extra incentive in coming to the coast," a spokesman for the B.C. Agricultural Association said today.

$1 MILLION
The exhibition ground and racetrack—expected to be built at a cost exceeding $1,000,000—will be built on 130 acres of land at Colwood which was occupied by the Army during the war and latterly for naval stores.

It is now idle. A long-term lease between the national defence department and the B.C. Agricultural Association is expected to be announced "within the next two weeks," the BCAA official said.

In Victoria today, Defence Minister G. R. Pearkes, V.C., confirmed that his department is prepared to lease the property and terms of the lease are now being studied.

"But we are not disposing of the property," he added.

SUB-LET TRACK
The BCAA official said: "We are not directly concerned with the racetrack as that would be operated by another party on a sub-letting basis. "We don't yet know who that party will be."

It is known that the Island Turf Club Ltd. and the Randall interests, which operate the Sandown Track at Sidney, are actively concerned.

If the Randall interests secured the sub-lease, it is understood they would continue the Sandown track as a secondary incentive to racehorse owners to bring their horses to the Island.

MEET NEXT WEEK
The BCAA official said a final meeting to discuss leasing the Colwood property probably will be held next week.

"The racing end of it is important," he said, "but we are naturally more interested in providing a first-class exhibition ground.

"We are actually the only city in Canada which does not have a grade A agricultural fair."

Even if the lease is signed next week, it will take at least a year before the property will be ready for use. Hundreds of thousands of dollars will have to be spent on the racetrack, grandstand and barns.

It is understood that if Island

Turf Club Ltd., gets the race-track lease, it would try to purchase the Randall interests at Sandown Park, shifting the racing to Colwood and keeping Sandown as a training track.

There is also a possibility that the Island Turf Club and the Randall interests may join forces to develop racing at Colwood.

Part of the old track is still there. Up to 1936 it was in active use for horse racing.

Discipline Asked For Sikh Minister

A section of B.C.'s Sikh community will ask officials of the Sikh religion in India for disciplinary action against Munsha Singh, Sikh minister of the Topaz Street Dwan Temple, for holding up to ridicule the "turban."

The turban worn by many Sikhs is a sacred symbol of their religion.

The Sikhs at a two-day meeting at the Vancouver Akali Temple this weekend ruled the Sikh minister offended their religion when he allowed his picture to appear in conjunction with a Times article which stated that the wearing of the turban was on "the way out in B.C."

The article quoted Kuldeep Bains, a leading member of the East Indian community, as saying that if Gurm Gobind Singh, the spiritual ruler of the Sikhs was alive today, he would suggest to his adherents in B.C. to "go modern" and to "visit a barber and buy a hat."

"I wouldn't be surprised if Munsha Singh is asked to resign his position as Sikh minister," said Mohinder Singh, secretary of the Akali Temple. "A serious offence has been committed."

The Vancouver meeting called a "puncheon," was attended by about 15 East Indians representing Sikh communities from all parts of the province. It was presided over by five men attired in military dress and equipped with swords.

The members made a pledge that Sikhs in B.C. will continue to wear the turban and uphold the principles of their religion. Mohinder Singh said Mr. Bains insulted the spiritual leader of Sikhism when he suggested that Sikhs discard their turbans and beards.

"His statements are bitterly resented by all East Indians," said Mohinder Singh.

He explained the spiritual leader of the Sikhs instructed all his followers to wear the turban, long hair, a comb, a bracelet and shorts.

"It is written in the holy books that if any Sikh, once baptized, cuts his hair or wears a hat, he will suffer a leper in his seven succeeding lives according to the principles of transmigration of souls," explained Mohinder Singh.

Mohinder Singh claimed that Kuldeep Singh was not a "Sikh," and could not be regarded as a spokesman for the East Indian community.

Mohinder Singh claimed that Kuldeep Singh was not a "Sikh," and could not be regarded as a spokesman for the East Indian community.

The Vancouver meeting called a "puncheon," was attended by about 15 East Indians representing Sikh communities from all parts of the province. It was presided over by five men attired in military dress and equipped with swords.

The members made a pledge that Sikhs in B.C. will continue to wear the turban and uphold the principles of their religion.

Mohinder Singh said Mr. Bains insulted the spiritual leader of Sikhism when he suggested that Sikhs discard their turbans and beards.

"His statements are bitterly resented by all East Indians," said Mohinder Singh.

He explained the spiritual leader of the Sikhs instructed all his followers to wear the turban, long hair, a comb, a bracelet and shorts.

"It is written in the holy books that if any Sikh, once baptized, cuts his hair or wears a hat, he will suffer a leper in his seven succeeding lives according to the principles of transmigration of souls," explained Mohinder Singh.

Mohinder Singh claimed that Kuldeep Singh was not a "Sikh," and could not be regarded as a spokesman for the East Indian community.

Seven Injured In Weekend Road Accidents

Biggest pile-up was at the intersection of Old West Saanich and West Saanich Roads where cars driven by Donald M. Baker, 4331 Shelbourne, and Hendrik Van Boven, 3615 Richmond, were first in collision.

The car driven by Baker then went out of control as a result of the collision and was forced into the path of an auto being driven by Robert H. Cunningham, Royal Oak.

WET ROADS

Mrs. Helen Cunningham was taken to Jubilee Hospital with knee and forehead cuts and Mrs. Dorothy Van Boven was examined for slight injuries.

Police said the roads were wet and it was raining heavily at the time of the accident, about 8 p.m.

Estimated damage to Baker's car was $700; to Van Boven's, $350 and to Cunningham's $300.

At 5:10 p.m. Sunday Mrs. Julian Karpick, 27, 3268 Alder, was treated at St. Joseph's Hospital as a result of an accident on Trans-Canada Highway, which also injured her 14-month-old son Mark.

Mrs. Karpick had foot abrasions, her son was treated for a bruised forehead. Both were discharged.

Oscar Ludviksson, 59, 3278 Oak, was treated for forehead, shoulder and hip abrasions at St. Joseph's after he was involved in an accident at Douglas and Cloverdale Sunday at 6:45 p.m.

About an hour earlier, in the city, Mrs. Margaret Ford, 36, 1048 Pandora, was taken to Jubilee for treatment of head injury and shock received when the car in which she was riding was in collision with another car at Johnson and Quadra.

Driver of the car, Kenneth O. Ford, 1048 Pandora, was examined for a possible arm injury and discharged.

Police said driver of the other car was George W. Jenkins, 3937 Douglas.

ASK The TIMES

Q.—Will you please tell me when the Chinese New Year is celebrated in 1958, also what the numerical year is, and whether it is considered a lucky year or not? M. C. L.

A.—The year 4,654 is celebrated February 18 this year. It is considered a lucky year, although no member of the Chinese community here seemed to know why this is the case. At one time the New Year was marked here with dances and letting off of fireworks, but today observances are limited to the older Chinese of the 3,000-person community.

The year 4,654 dates back to the year of the first established and recorded Chinese kingdom.

Anyone wishing a question answered is invited to send the question along in The Times' address to "Ask The Times" Editor. Questions and answers will be published daily.

All questions should deal with matters of fact and be of general interest. The Times does not undertake to solve conundrums.

PUBLISHER'S NOTEBOOK

Defacing the Highways

Senator Richard Neuberger, whose interest in the outdoors has brought him to B.C. many times, has been conducting a brisk campaign in the press and at Washington against highway advertising.

After two weeks and 2,000 miles of driving through the State of California, it is easy for the visitor to understand why: In no other place that I can recall has natural beauty been so wantonly defaced by what

H. L. Mencken calls a "libido for ugliness."

Mencken's point was that there are, in certain areas of the United States, evidences of "a lust to make the world intolerable . . . a race which hates beauty as it hates truth."

He cannot explain it; he just says that it's there.

There is ample support for his argument in the unbroken—and unlovely—line of hamburger heavens, drive-ins, used-car lots, gas stations, motels, junkyards and orange juice stands on the 40 miles or so south of San Francisco to San Jose, each with its distracting glitter of whirling neon globes, mounted hub caps or fluttering pennants.

Santa Monica, which I am told was once a lovely holiday resort, looks to the passing motorist like a Pacific Coast version of Coney Island.

At Long Beach, the derricks darken the sky and only occasionally—as at sundown—are you reminded of the beauty which once was here.

To get away from it all, the natives are fanning out eastward from the coast. Now they have reached the desert.

And at Palm Springs, 105 miles from Los Angeles, in the shadow of Mount Jacinto, it's apparent that they're making the same mistakes all over again.

What does the billboard say on the road to Indio? "Come in," it screams, "and study the sex life of the date!"

It's a sticky thought.

A few places, far from the freeways, seem to have escaped—Carmel-by-the-Sea, Santa Barbara, La Jolla and the valleys like San Joaquin, where the Oakes came in the 30's with their grapes of wrath, and stayed to prosper.

Billboard advertising undoubtedly serves a good and useful purpose in urban areas. We in B.C. were wise to confine it there. What it has done to the highways of California is nothing less than a crime against nature.

SHOPPING GUIDE

Oh! Look at Your Clothes—Better Have 'Em Cleaned!

By PENNY SAVER

Have you taken a look in your clothes closet lately? I don't want to seem nosy, but after looking at the state of my wardrobe, I thought you might like the hint. As a result of sitting in cars and on buses, I've a good many creased and crumpled effects.

Then, there is the unforgivable habit of hanging one's clothes up hit or miss—it's a careless manner to treat our poor duds, isn't it? If the cap fits, friend, wear it, because you can bet that we're all guilty of this crime. So today I'm writing about the care of clothes... for you, you and me!

Take a good suit, for example. It may look shabby now, but think what a difference a good dry cleaning does to it! Why, it's practically a new garment. Any size suit can be cleaned for $1.25... a low price for keeping up an appearance.

It's amazing how a topcoat can become grimy without you even noticing it! You know, the heavy material and dark shade (tweed, too) can be deceiving! The price of renewing said topcoat is $1.25.

Students take note! You may have dozens of skirts and sweaters in your wardrobe and they may all be of top quality! But what good are they if they look like something the cat dragged in? The price of having these garments cleaned would not eat into your allowance too much. The cost is only 65 cents for each item!

You never know when you're going to be invited to a party! Wouldn't it be wise to take a look at your best party frocks now, and count the number of food stains on the skirt? Hems can become slightly black, too, especially after dancing most of the night in a pastel full-length gown! A charge of $2.25 will be made to clean that beautiful frock and make it look like new.

Let's turn a new leaf as far as clothing is concerned. Have a dry cleaning drive! Phone me at 2-3131 for the name of a cleaner.

For Solarium—At a meeting of Craigflower Women's Institute it was decided to donate $100 to the British Columbia Institutes ward in the new Solarium. Officers were named as follows: President, Mrs. A. Gray; vice-president, Mrs. V. Sanford; secretary, Mrs. M. Holland; treasurer, Mrs. G. C. Cosh; director, Mrs. R. Albany; citizenship, Mrs. O. Pearson; home economics, Mrs. E. Gardiner; handicrafts, Mrs. L. Wade; social welfare, Mrs. J. Godman; publicity, Mrs. J. F. Lauritzen; health, Mrs. W. McWilliams; purchasing, Mrs. Godman, and tea hostess, Mrs. Cosh. A handicraft meeting will be held in the home of Mrs. L. Wade, 115 Island Highway, at 1.30 p.m. on Jan. 23.

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Join Marathon Now; You Owe It to Yourself

Women generally are so busy planning for and caring for and thinking of their families that they may neglect themselves without realizing it. We so often hear women say, "I do not have time to exercise or take little rest periods during the day." They do not have time because they do not take time to do those things which give us added zest and life added bloom.

Yet we all owe ourselves something. We have a debt to ourselves to remain as young for as long as we can, to protect our health and our looks. We owe it to ourselves and to those who love us.

Why not concentrate on YOU this next eight weeks? As most of you know, I print my 8-Week Self-Improvement Marathon, each year at this time. Marathon does not take much of your time each day but it will bring you great results. Not only are the immediate results lovely, but

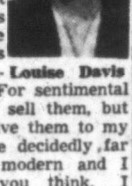

LOUISE DAVIS

On Etiquette

More on heirlooms for presents:

I was interested in your recent column about giving family heirlooms for Christmas presents. I am another who is moving from a large house to a small apartment. My niece and her husband have gone completely modern with their new house, decor and furnishings.

I have my grandmother's rocking chair and a magnificent walnut grandfather's clock which are collectors' items according to an Louise Davis antique dealer. For sentimental reasons, I can't sell them, but would like to give them to my niece. They are decidedly far removed from modern and I wonder what you think. I wouldn't want to put my niece in an embarrassing or awkward spot.

Louise Davis answers:

First of all, approach your niece and tell her that you would like to give the two antiques to her but only if she would really like to have them and that it wouldn't hurt your feelings a bit if she rejects the idea, for you would understand. If she has a one-track mind concerning contemporary decor, she may not relish mixing the old and the new. But if she has blessed herself with a wider vision and scope, she may welcome your offer. Modern decor, if in good taste, can be interesting and exciting. With that one-track mind, it can be cold and stark, but sometimes can be relieved with enough "old" to pull it together as a more livable looking home. I understand that this is a new trend. The rocking chair is rocking itself right back into the modern picture. The chimes and tick-tock of grandfather's clocks are also coming out of storage and antique shops to grace the contemporary scene to give their owners some realization that tangible heritage is comforting to have around.

Coffee Party—Individual tables were decorated with foliage at a coffee party sponsored recently by the Woman's Auxiliary to Prince Edward Branch, Canadian Legion, at Langford. Convenor was Mrs. T. McKay, assisted by Mrs. A. Green. Cocoa was served to the children. Another coffee party is planned for Feb. 4.

Kiwanians Name New Officers

Mrs. E. J. Capling was installed president of the Oak Bay Kiwanians at the annual meeting held in the Roslyn Road home of Mrs. Ken Brown. Other officers are Mrs. T. George Megaw, vice-president; Mrs. Fred Usher, second vice-president; Mrs. A. E. Newton, secretary, and Mrs. Bert Sutton, treasurer. Committee members are: Welfare, Mrs. W. Young; sick and visiting, Mrs. Don Johnston; phoning, Mrs. E. W. Brinkworth; house and social, Mrs. C. Gibbard; and program, Mrs. D. Clayards.

The retiring president, Mrs. Colin Mooney was presented with an engraved coffee spoon by Mrs. Brown and Mrs. C. C. Annett thanked the retiring officers.

Following the meeting Mrs. W. Young showed colored slides and gave a talk on her recent trip to Europe. Refreshments were served by Mrs. Brown and co-hostesses Mrs. T. C. Moulds, Mrs. Hugh Reston, Mrs. Sutton and Mrs. B. Smith.

Gala Program As Athletics Open New Hall

ALBERNI — Alberni Valley sportsmen enjoyed one of their proudest moments Saturday when the new $100,000 Alberni Athletic Association gymnasium was officially opened before more than 1,500 fans.

E. G. Shorter, vice-president of MacMillan and Bledel, Ltd., formally declared the hall—dream of the community's sports fans for many years—open.

Several other sports and civic dignitaries, including Mayor Loran Jordan of Port Alberni and Mayor Jack Luckhurst of Alberni, also spoke during the program, which was highlighted by a parade of players, ranging from pre-midget girls to senior "B" men hoopers.

Joined by Elmer Spidel's senior men's team and oldtimers, the closely-packed ranks more than half filled the floor. Later the senior A team dominated Vancouver Eilers 56-41, with Alberni leading all the way.

George "Porky" Andrews of Victoria, first coach of the Athletics when the club was formed in 1948, tossed up the ball for the opening jump to give the game an official send-off.

STUFFED BIRDS AND ANIMALS in King's Road Scout Hall riveted attention of Junior Natural History Society at annual party Saturday. More than 60 boys and girls, aged 10 to 16, as well as parents, attended. Young naturalists played games based on nature lore supervised by leader Freeman King. Provincial museum director Dr. Clifford Carl said, "the children were enthusiastic and had plenty of fun." (Photo by William Boucher)

New Speaker Disappointed No TV for Legislature

Hugh Shantz, speaker-designate of the B.C. legislature, said today he is disappointed there will be no television coverage of the session opening a week next Thursday.

The CBC, which first televised the opening-day ceremonies last year, has advised Premier Bennett it cannot afford to have its cameras here this year.

Because of the heavy schedule of Centennial Year special events, its budget will not allow televising the opening, the CBC said.

400 GET IN

Mr. Shantz said he believes that especially because this is Centennial Year, the legislature ceremony should be seen by as many British Columbians as possible.

Seating arrangements allow only about 400 people to squeeze in the chamber and public galleries on opening day.

Mr. Shantz said he is attempting to get as many people in this year as possible.

"I may be stepping on a few toes to do it," he admitted.

Agreement Near On Financing Northern Road

Mines Minister Kenneth Kiernan said today B.C. and Ottawa are close to reaching a final agreement on financing the Cassiar-Stewart road.

Mr. Kiernan met with Federal Resources Minister Alvin Hamilton in Ottawa last week after negotiations seemed to have stalled.

"We now see eye to eye on the problem," Mr. Kiernan said today, "and I don't think we're going to have too much difficulty finalizing an agreement."

Approval must be made by both the federal and provincial cabinets before details can be disclosed, Mr. Kiernan said.

The minister did say, however, that a decision has been reached on the route, and the southern terminus will definitely be Stewart. It will take four years to complete the 375-mile road.

The federal government has previously agreed to put up a total of $6,000,000 toward the cost of the road. This figure was based on an estimated total cost of $12,000,000.

However, Mr. Hamilton said earlier this month that federal engineers estimate the cost at $20,550,000, and the federal government was not prepared to go beyond a $6,000,000 contribution.

Mr. Kiernan criticized the federal government for insisting on high minimum standards for the road and then failing to pay its half share. B.C. was not prepared to spend $14,500,000 on that basis, he said before last week's trip to Ottawa.

Churchmen Meet Tonight On Fund Drive

Initial plans for a joint fund-raising campaign will be made by representatives of about 10 churches at a meeting in the YWCA tonight at 6.

The group will be addressed by Rev. Douglas Pilkey, local organizer of the "sector plan," and Rev. W. J. H. Smyth, councilor from the Canadian Council of Churches and western secretary of the stewardship section, United Church of Canada.

The first training dinner will be held in Metropolitan United Church Wednesday at 6:30 p.m.

Safe Atomic Plane Crash Top U.K. News

LONDON (AP)—Two of London's three afternoon newspapers gave top display today to a report that an American plane carrying a nuclear weapon crashed in the United States without setting off the weapon.

The story had major impact in Britain where many persons—particularly the leaders of the Labor party—have expressed concern lest a similar accident vaporize a sizable portion of their thickly-populated island.

The headline of The Star, Liberal, and The Evening Standard, Conservative, both quoted a New York Times account saying the U.S. government had told of the crash to answer British worries.

'Horse' Leads Western Stars To Bowl Win

LOS ANGELES (CP)—The West turned on a powerful offensive display in the second half Sunday to defeat the East 26-7 in the eighth annual pro bowl—the National Football League's all-star game.

The first half was a stubborn, hard-tackling display until Alan (The Horse) Ameche, fullback from Baltimore Colts, cut loose with an electrifying 66-yard run.

The gallop, which took Ameche around and frequently over several would-be tacklers, set up the first of two field goals by his teammate, Bert Rechichar.

HUGE CROWD

That goal gave the West a 9-7 halftime lead. They added another field goal and a converted touchdown in the third quarter, and a converted touchdown in the fourth quarter.

A record crowd of 66,634 sat under sunny skies to see the pick of the western conference against the best in the east of the NFL.

COURT HEARING Faces Drivers Doing Over 50

(From CP Dispatches)
VANCOUVER—Speeders doing more than 50 miles an hour in the city will have to make a personal appearance before a magistrate in future instead of being able to pay a fine out of court, deputy police chief Gordon Ambrose said Sunday.

In the past all speeders have been given tickets which could be settled without court appearance on payment of the minimum fine.

New orders given to traffic officers require that all drivers clocked at more than 50 miles an hour be sent summonses to appear in court. The deputy chief said this will enable magistrates to impose fines up to $300 in flagrant speeding cases.

CHURCH RAIDED

OSOYOOS—Burglars broke into the vestry of St. Anne's Roman Catholic Church here but failed to open a small cabinet containing several hundred dollars when the key broke off in the lock. Nothing was taken.

YOUTHS HELD

VANCOUVER—Police are holding four suspects in connection with a burglary and attempted break-in at two schools here.

Three youths were arrested shortly after midnight Saturday at Sir Richard Grenfell Elementary School.

SAFE CRACKED

VANCOUVER—Thieves who broke into a downtown shoe store during the weekend took $1,158 from the safe and left behind two old pairs of socks.

Police said the gang which raided Dicks Shoes, on Howe Street, gained entry through a skylight and ripped off the bottom of the safe.

BATTLES BANDIT

VANCOUVER—James Robertson, 66-year-old pool hall operator, was injured Saturday when he grappled with a gunman who staged an abortive holdup. He was hit on the right arm with the butt of a holdup man's gun. Four stitches were required to close the wound.

SOLUTION WEDNESDAY

Is there something you want to know? Do you want to win a set of valuable books or other instructive prizes? Then ask Andy. Andy will answer questions submitted by child readers and those who submit the questions he selects to answer will receive worthwhile prizes. The youngster who asks the first question answered each day receives a 20-volume set of Compton's Pictured Encyclopedia (Canadian edition) and of the second question a Hammond Atlas or Globe.

Address your questions to "Ask Andy," Victoria Daily Times. Andy sends a complete, 15-volume set of Compton's Pictured Encyclopedia to Gary Tocheri, aged 14, of Fort William, Ont., for his question.

Why Do We Have to Graft Fruit Trees?

John Chapman gathered apple seeds in Pennsylvania. He sowed them to the pioneers in Ohio and planted them in rich soil beside the streams. He was, of course, gentle Johnny Appleseed, who not only planted orchards in Ohio but in Indiana and Illinois as well. Ten years after Johnny planted an orchard the American pioneers enjoyed a fair harvest of apples. The apples were good, but not so good as those from the parent trees in Pennsylvania.

Our great big apples descended from the pretty little crab apple. When our highly developed trees are grown from seed, they do not run true to form. The apples may take a step back towards their wild ancestors. Or they may produce something new and different. In any case, apples from seed trees cannot be depended upon to be like their parents. The fruit farmer makes sure he gets the apples he wants by grafting.

Grafting is a merger between two trees. One is a sturdy stock tree grown from a seed. The other is a cutting, called a scion, taken from a tree bearing the kind of apples selected. The seedling is cut down to bare the inner wood. The scion also is cut to bare the inner wood. The two areas of inner wood are placed face to face. The stem and the twig are taped and sealed together. New woody cells begin to grow, joining the stock and the scion. Soon they begin to act as one plant. The stock provides the root system. It sends up moisture and minerals from the soil for the whole tree. Later on, when the scion buds, its leaves provide plant food for the whole tree. The scion may be the whole trunk or merely a branch of the grafted apple tree.

The apples from the scion will be perfect copies of the apples from the tree from which it came. Not only does this grafting guarantee apples of the right sort, it also speeds the harvest. Instead of the 10 years needed for a seedling to yield, the grafted tree has apples in two or three years.

Switches Extend Growth

There are other advantages to grafting. A grafted fruit tree may be made to grow in new places. The peach likes sandy, well-drained soil. The plum tree likes poorly drained soil. Peach can be grafted onto plum stock growing in soggy soil. Plum can be grafted onto peach stock growing in loose, sandy soil. So we get peaches and plums growing where they have never grown before.

Grafting also helps to keep down plant pests and disease. Some fruit trees cannot be hurt by this pest or that disease. These trees form fine stock, though the fruit may be poor.

Some years ago the grape vines of France were attacked by a pesky root louse. This fellow had no interest in the roots of American grape vines. So these immune vines were used as stock. Scions from the French vines were grafted onto them. The result—the French vineyards bore French grapes on American stock free from the pesky root louse.

Grafting is a simple job to an expert. The fruit trees are grafted at a nursery. The farmer gets the young plant when stock and scion are already merged. He plants them far enough apart and in the proper soil. When harvest comes around, he is quite sure to get the fruit he expected, all because of grafting.

'Scrap' Hidden From Cruise Ship

Victoria's gala welcome to the holiday cruise ship Leilani next Saturday night will not be dampened by a rusted metal scrapheap or a dilapidated old shed, according to Sam Lane, chairman of the chamber of Commerce tourist trade group.

"The landing dock at Ogden Lane will be flooded and no one will see the scrap or the shed on the other side of the ship," Mr. Lane declared.

"Why throw cold water over the colorful celebrations we have planned?" Mr. Lane was referring to a report that Chamber officials are "concerned" over the appearance of the junkyard and shed on property administered by Canadian National Railways. "They would only see this in the daytime," he said.

The Leilani will land at Ogden Point at 8 p.m. to pick up 100 Victoria and Island passengers for Honolulu—the first cruise in years linking Victoria with Hawaii.

From then until midnight, when the ship sails, the landing dock will be illuminated by three high-powered floodlights.

There will be entertainment by the Victoria Girls' Drill Team, a large pipe band, Jock Dunbar (baritone), Century Sam and mythical Victorian characters such as Colonel Blimp, Miss Lovelace and Mr. Bobby Hatt.

Hundreds of colored streamers will be exchanged between passengers on board and the hundreds of sightseers on shore. As the ship pulls out, the streamers will break and Jock Dunbar will sing through a loudspeaker, "Will Ye No Come Back Again?"

Mayor Percy Scourrah and members of the city council, with officials of the Chamber of Commerce, are to be received by the commodore aboard the Leilani.

"We hope the public will join in giving the Leilani a real rousing welcome so that she will come back here again in the not-too-distant future," Mr. Lane said.

"We would like to see Victoria restored as a regular port of call for passenger ships."

Indians Vote Against Lease Of 3.5 Acres

NANAIMO (CP)—Members of Nanaimo Indian band have voted against leasing 3.5 acres of No. 1 reserve to the Mayo Logging Company as part of a proposed $500,000 development project.

Reason for the adverse vote is believed to hinge on a lease appraisal obtained by the department of Indian affairs.

A spokesman for the Nanaimo band said the lease value was set by a Victoria appraiser at $1,500 annually for a 20-year period. The lease would be open for negotiation every five years with an option for renewal.

Rajindi Mayo, president of Mayo logging, indicated in outlining details of the project Dec. 11 that his company could get by without the reserve land, on which it intended to establish an assembly yard.

Mr. Cameron, CCF member for Nanaimo, told the Commons Friday in criticizing RCMP investigation methods that the friend, his "financial agent" in the 1953 general election, had been checked for Communist affiliations.

He said the two RCMP officers who conducted the investigation were "political and ideological innocents... babes in arms... incapable of assessing if there were Communist affiliation."

Hospital District Vote For Cowichan Saturday

DUNCAN—Ratepayers of the unorganized portions of school districts 65 and 66 will vote Saturday on the question of incorporating the two areas as a hospital improvement district.

If the vote is affirmative, public meetings will be held and trustees appointed to represent the ratepayers in discussions with directors of King's Daughters' Hospital.

SECOND VOTE

Assuming there is agreement on construction of a new hospital, then there will be a second vote in the hospital district on plans and costs.

Alternatively, the district can go ahead with plans of its own for a hospital, but little hope is held for such a scheme. After three years of effort Lake Cowichan had to give up its hospital plan because the BCHIS favors establishment of a modern hospital at Duncan to serve the whole of the Cowichan Valley, and will not support any scheme for smaller hospitals.

In the meantime, King's Daughters' Hospital here is becoming more and more obsolete and overcrowded, with occupancy at 91 per cent instead of the acceptable maximum of 80 to 85 per cent.

All property owners in the district and their spouses, and representatives of business firms are eligible to cast ballots. Voting will be from 8 a.m. to 8 p.m. at the following schools:

ora, Koksilah, Mill Bay, Saht-lam, Shawpigan Lake.

Cyril R. Eldred is returning officer for the district 65 area, and W. A. Chappell for district 66.

HUTCHISON FROM OTTAWA

Times Editor Sees Pearson Easy Winner

By BRUCE HUTCHISON
Editor of the Times

OTTAWA—The Liberal party convention opening here Tuesday will launch Canada into a major political crisis only a few days later.

In the first phase of the complicated manoeuvres now under way, the initiative will rest with the new Liberal leader, presumably Mr. L. B. Pearson.

In the second phase the initiative will pass to Prime Minister Diefenbaker.

The third phase, a general election, will be settled by the voters.

Phase One can hardly be delayed beyond the first days of next week when Mr. Pearson faces Parliament for the first time as Leader of the Opposition and must then decide to defeat the government, as he can easily do, or to maintain it in office for the time being.

How will Mr. Pearson choose between these only available alternatives? That is the first great unknown of the developing crisis. The decision will not be easy.

If Mr. Pearson continues the Liberal party's strategy of recent weeks, attacks the government but refuses to move a vote of want of confidence the government will taunt him with the charge of timidity and fear of the voters.

If he moves such a motion and is supported by the CCF as probably he would be, the government will fall.

That schedule would suit the government perfectly. Caught in a net of unforeseen problems economic and financial the government is panting for a chance to postpone them and hide its budgetary deficits until it can escape to the country and win a majority. But for this escape it needs a reasonable excuse which so far the Liberal party has refused to supply by opposing any government policy in a parliamentary vote.

If Mr. Pearson provides that excuse by a want of confidence motion next week, Mr. Diefenbaker, it is expected, will move into the second stage of the crisis by dissolving Parliament within hours of an unfavorable vote. That would mean an election less than two months later, toward the latter days of March. Preparations to this end already are under way in the Conservative Party from coast to coast, in case Mr. Diefenbaker decides on a quick lunge. He may

One Ballot to Decide Leadership---Pearson

OTTAWA (CP)—Candidate Lester B. Pearson said today he believes just one ballot will be required to decide the Liberal leadership Thursday night.

"I have no reason to believe there will be any dark horses in the race," he told a press conference.

Reporters recalled that his chief opponent, 54-year-old former health minister Paul Martin, has stated he would give Mr. Pearson his old portfolio back if he became Liberal leader and prime minister. What would Mr. Pearson do for Mr. Martin?

"Well, I think Paul Martin was the greatest minister of health and welfare we ever had," replied Mr. Pearson with a smile.

Mr. Martin's campaign committee has stated it has promises of support of some 600 of the 1,500 delegates. How many promises had Mr. Pearson?

"I'm very, very encouraged by the evidence of widespread support I am receiving," said Mr. Pearson, but he declined to disclose any figure. He recalled how confident the Liberals were in the June 10 general election when they were defeated by the Progressive Conservatives.

BOWTIES MUSHROOM

'Mike' All the Way With West Delegates

OTTAWA (CP)—A trainload of some 300 Western Liberals arrived early today with many of the delegates proclaiming themselves in favor of Lester B. Pearson for the party leadership.

Delegate R. H. Walker of Calgary said: "It's going to be 'Mike' Pearson all the way." Delegate L. P. Coderre, member of the Saskatchewan Legislature, predicted that the former external affairs minister will get 60 per cent of Saskatchewan's vote and that the other 40 per cent will go to Paul Martin, former health minister.

As the delegates got out of their 11-car train into the railway station, Mr. Pearson mixed among them, along with Mayor Don Mackay of Calgary, another leadership candidate who says he may decide to withdraw and back Mr. Pearson.

The other candidates, Mr. Martin and Mayor H. L. Henderson of Portage la Prairie, Man., were not around. Mr. Henderson, a Presbyterian minister, said he will wage a campaign without posters or "cowboy show." Mr. Martin said he was "too busy" meeting delegates elsewhere.

LIKE MIKE

As a band struck up a welcoming tune, local supporters for Mr. Pearson appeared with huge cardboard bowties and hat placards proclaiming: "I like Mike."

Mr. Mackay, colorful, 43-year-old mayor, who tossed his big, white cowboy hat into the leadership ring, now is wondering whether he shouldn't yank it out and get behind the bow-tied Mr. Pearson.

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower put before the United States Congress today a record peace-time budget just short of $74,000,000,000.

By far the largest part of it, almost two-thirds, is for defence against growing danger from Russia in "the dawn age of space conquest."

The president disclosed that the government now expects to wind up in the red for the fiscal year ending June 30, and he announced his intention to ask for a short-term increase in the present $275,000,000 limit on the national debt.

VOICES CONFIDENCE

But he voiced confidence that business will pick up and tax receipts will increase so that the new $73,900,000,000 budget, for the 1958-59 fiscal year, will be in balance. He said he expects a surplus of $500,000,000 or so, compared with the $400,000,000 deficit now in sight for this year.

The White House announced in advance that Eisenhower's budget message, which ran to some 22,000 words with a mass of figures attached, would outline a domestic program largely passed over in last Thursday's "state of the union" message.

It did. But, like the earlier message, it put heaviest emphasis on security matters with a $39,800,000,000 request for the armed forces alone. With this expected boost, almost $200,000,000 higher than last January's estimate, Eisenhower asked: "A $3,800,000,000 increase in spending for missile and nuclear weapon research and production. This would give the defence department an extra $1,300,000,000 to spend as soon as the money is appropriated. Continued on Page 2

By DOUG PEDEN
Times Sports Editor

(See sports pages for further details)

Troubles in the ranks of Victoria's community-owned hockey club, heated by the Cougars' poor record, reached a climax at a directors' meeting Sunday afternoon when it was decided to ask playing general-manager

Fred Mackenzie to replace Kilburn.

Although the club has managed to win only nine and tie one of 39 Western Hockey League games this season and Kilburn has been asked to remain with the club as a player, the decision hit the city's hockey fans like a bombshell.

WANT FULL STORY

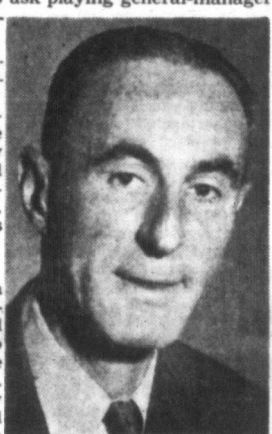

First definite reaction was a move by a group of shareholders to petition for a general meeting of the membership to obtain a full explanation of the reasons behind the ouster move. Club president Dr. Andy Reid said the directors believed they had taken the right course to assure the future of good hockey in Victoria. One of the main reasons for the decision, he said, was the Cougars' failure to play up to its "paper strength" in WHL competition this season.

"We might have let the matter slide until the end of the season," Dr. Reid said today, "but we have a responsibility to the shareholders and believe we have taken the right course."

"I will welcome a chance to meet the shareholders and explain the reasons behind our decision. And I will be pleased to answer any accusations made by Kilburn. This was not a hasty decision. We have been considering it for the past month."

It has been known for several weeks that some directors believed Kilburn was taking too much power into his own hands and not consulting them on all his transactions. Some also blamed dissent on the club to Kilburn's inability to get along with all the players.

Announcement of the request for the resignation came as a surprise to most fans because Kilburn, more than any other man, provided the spark that ignited the drive for funds last summer which kept professional hockey in Victoria. Continued on Page 2

OTTAWA (CP)—Former external affairs minister Lester Pearson said today the line taken by President Eisenhower in reply to Soviet Premier Bulganin's call for a summit meeting "is a good one."

Mr. Pearson, a candidate for the Liberal leadership, told a press conference that he agreed that meetings should first be held "in the valley" before going to the summit.

OTTAWA (CP)—Russian Premier Bulganin, in his latest letter to Prime Minister Diefenbaker, says the Soviet would welcome the initiative of Canada in organizing negotiations between East and West on international problems, particularly disarmament.

"Here, in Moscow, the reports of the intention of your government to assist in organizing negotiations between the statesmen of East and the West on questions of disarmament and other international problems have not passed unnoticed," Bulganin said in the letter, delivered to Mr. Diefenbaker Friday—by Soviet Ambassador Dmitri Chuvahin.

"Undoubtedly, we would welcome the efforts of the Canadian government in this direction as well as the initiative of Canada in drawing together the points of view of the parties on some or other international questions and, in particular, on the problem of disarmament."

Mr. Diefenbaker said in the Commons Friday the communication would be studied during the weekend and he hoped to make a comment on it early this week.

It arrived before Mr. Diefenbaker could get off a reply to another letter he received Dec. 13 from Bulganin. On each occasion, similar letters were sent to the United States and Britain and other NATO countries.

In the latest letter, text of which was released Sunday night by the Soviet Embassy here, Bulganin reiterated his plea for a summit conference of major East and West powers within the next two or three months.

Suspension of Nuclear Tests

He proposed the meeting discuss immediate cessation for a period of two or three years of hydrogen and atomic bomb tests, pledges by the U.S., Britain and Russia not to use these weapons, creation of an atomic buffer zone in central Europe and a non-aggression pact between the NATO and Warsaw alliances.

"We hope," Bulganin said, "that your Mr. Diefenbaker's recent statements as well as statements of the members of your government on the readiness of Canada to carry on negotiations with the U.S.S.R. will predominate the favorable attitude of the Canadian government toward the proposal advanced by us for the convocation of a meeting of leading statesmen."

Mentioning by name Liberal leader Louis St. Laurent, CCF leader M. J. Coldwell and Social Credit leader Solon Low, he said they also had spoken in favor of negotiations with Russia.

In the Commons last Tuesday Mr. Diefenbaker said it would be inappropriate for this country to suggest a summit conference without prior consultation between Canada and her Western Allies.

There would have to be prior certainty that a summit conference would be generally beneficial.

Unlike the first letter to Mr. Diefenbaker—which the prime minister described to reporters as "propaganda"—Bulganin's second communication made no mention of trade talks between Canada and Russia or direct negotiations between the two countries aimed at improving the international climate.

Nor could it be considered as threatening as the first letter, which spoke at fair length of the consequences of any storing of U.S. atomic and hydrogen weapons on Canadian territory.

PM Orders Study Of U.S. Old Age Plan

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Diefenbaker today announced an immediate study will be made to see whether aspects of the United States old age security program can be adapted in Canada in addition to present old age pensions.

He informed the Commons that Professor Gordon Huson of the University of Western Ontario has been named to carry out the study.

Mr. Diefenbaker said a preliminary examination shows the U.S. system provided higher benefits, paid at an earlier age, for a wider range of benefits.

The U.S. plan was financed on average contributions by each person of $27.08 a year—"not much more than the average contribution by Canadians of $22.70 for the old age pension" of $55 monthly to all 70 and over.

The prime minister emphasized that any changes in the Canadian program would be in addition to the present pensions. He said the U.S. plan of old age and survivor insurance provides average monthly benefits on retirement of $76 for single workers, $128 for married couples without dependents and $65 for aged widows.

Resolutions To Revamp Liberal Stand

OTTAWA (CP)—Former transport minister George Marler today forecast that Liberal party concepts and policies will be reshaped in 15 to 20 major resolutions approved at this week's Liberal leadership convention.

Mr. Marler said two resolutions suggest Canadian recognition of Communist China. However, he said he would be "very much surprised if the convention decided to deal with that particular subject."

'Bad Manners, Thoughtlessness' In Deals With Canada—Acheson

NEW YORK (BUP)—Ex-secretary of state Dean Acheson called on the United States today to stop treating Canada with "thoughtlessness, ignorance and bad manners."

Acheson, who served as head of the state department in the Truman administration, appealed for a greater export of American capital to unify the free world through industrial growth and a common belief in practical ideals of liberty. He said the people who are willing to work the hardest ultimately will win the cold war.

Acheson's appeal was made in a book published today, "Power and Diplomacy."

In one facet of his general review of the west's position, he said that "all is not going well in our hemisphere. In Canada resentment against the United States public policy and private interests has assumed considerable proportions."

Acheson said Americans think it a compliment to tell Canadians they are just "like Americans" without realizing that "our economic embrace is stifling. To be sure it has produced an unprecedented boom in Canada, but also considerable worry as to who, before long, is going to own Canadian resources and be in a position to direct Canadian economic policy. All this calls for special thought and manners in living with a neighbor whose population, less than a tenth of ours, is as vigorous and capable as any in the world; whose geographical position and resources are of an importance which cannot be exaggerated, and whose basic interests are closer to ours than those of any other country."

Acheson quoted in the book at length from speeches of ex-minister of external affairs Lester B. Pearson and Prime Minister John Diefenbaker as to their concern about the drift of Canadian-American relations, and the great need for more Canadian exports to the U.S.

U.S. Missile Program Rushed

WASHINGTON (AP)—Defence Secretary Neil McElroy told Congress today the U.S. hasn't got positive evidence that Russia is ahead in long-range ballistic missiles—but that it is acting on that basis.

Because time is critical, McElroy told the House of Representatives armed service committee, the defence department is pushing ahead with the most promising weapons programs. He said it expects within the next 18 months to begin producing the Polaris missile, a 1,500-mile weapon capable of being fired from a submerged submerged submarine.

McElroy also said provision for a third launching base for intercontinental ballistic missiles is included in the new budget for the year beginning July 1. No location was given in the version of McElroy's testimony made public.

plus $2,500,000 more than it now has on hand for 1958-59. 2. A $500,000,000 reserve fund to rush development of any breakthroughs in the weapons field together with authority to switch $200,000,000 around within the armed services "in order to take prompt advantage of new developments."

3. For foreign military and related aid, $3,868,000,000 to be spent in the coming fiscal year. This is a $119,000,000 increase over the current figure.

All told, the new budget calls for 1958-59 spending at more than $1,000,000,000 over the current rate even allowing for recent speedups in missile and other weapons programs. And the current spending program, running at $72,900,000,000 a year, is the highest in American peacetime history.

SOME CUTS TOO

Eisenhower called for cuts as well as increases in the new budget. For the armed forces, he recommended a $1,500,000,000 slash in manpower, installations and older type weapons, including B-52 bombers and some other aircraft.

And he proposed "curtailments, revisions or eliminations" of many non-military programs, ranging from federal payments to farmers to expenditures for veterans' services and benefits.

Eisenhower said: "Americans have a tradition of uniting in action when their freedoms and welfare are threatened. We do not shirk our clear responsibilities when new challenges arise."

"I feel confident that this budget expresses the way in which the American people will want to respond to the promises and dangers of the dawn age of space conquest."

SMALL BUSINESS AID

And, as the White House forecast earlier, no general tax increases are proposed. Eisenhower suggested, in fact, some tax cuts to aid small business, while recommending higher taxes on aviation fuels to reduce the cost to the government of its activities in the air traffic field.

Likewise, the president included in his message a previously announced plan for a four-year $1,000,000,000 program aimed at helping the states improve education standards.

He came up with at least one recommendation which, like his foreign aid plan, is sure to meet opposition: A five-year extension of the reciprocal Trade Agreements Act, with more power for the president to make tariff-cutting agreements with other countries.

dissolve Parliament soon in any case but as he showed by his careful statements last week is hoping that the Liberals will play into his hands by providing the desired excuse for an early poll.

Without that excuse Mr. Diefenbaker's constitutional position is beyond question. He can get a dissolution at any moment. In a political sense, however, he must demonstrate to the voters that the delay of a dissolution and an election campaign are justified when many great national problems are crying for immediate action. Lacking Liberal co-operation it will be hard to justify such costly delay.

Hence the whole course of events beginning next week must depend primarily on Mr. Pearson in his first vital decision as a party leader. Probably no one but Mr. Pearson knows today how the trump card will fall after his opening speech.

But no one in Ottawa has any doubt on two points—first, that Mr. Pearson will be chosen Liberal leader and, second, that with his elevation the whole posture of the Liberal party will change from masterly delay to an open furious assault on the government.

Strategists of the Liberal party believe that the success or failure of that assault and the outcome of next week's struggle in Parliament will have a powerful, perhaps a decisive, effect on the approaching election.

Meanwhile, the Liberal party's problem at its convention is the precise opposite of that faced by the Conservative convention a year ago. The Conservatives paid little attention to policy and, dissatisfied with their hastily-built platform, quickly locked it up, refusing to mention it in the June election. Their only interest was in the fight for leadership won by Mr. Diefenbaker.

The Liberals take Mr. Pearson's choice for granted and are concentrating on policy. Here one wing of the party is tempted to outbid the government in promises of more spending, lower taxes, and an easier life for everyone, but it seems likely from the secret counsels of the last week that this temptation will be rejected in favor of a more candid platform.

In any case, platform will be subordinated to personality in the election. The Liberal campaign as at present conceived will be built primarily on Mr. Pearson as a man uniquely fitted for government and the most popular Liberal since Wilfrid Laurier.

Ike Seeks Hike In Foreign Aid

WASHINGTON (AP)—Congress was urged today to provide $3,940,000,000 in "critically needed" new foreign aid funds to offset Communist Russia's threats to attack, subvert and terrorize free nations.

President Eisenhower, making the request in his budget message, estimated foreign aid spending during the year starting July 1 at $3,868,000,000 up $119,000,000 from the current year's figure. Much of the spending will be from money already appropriated.

The fund, carrying the aid program into its 12th straight year, would pay for military, economic and technical assistance to 50 or more countries.

The request includes $1,800,000,000 for military assistance, $865,000,000 in defence support for economic help to countries getting the arms aid, and $1,275,000,000 in other economic and technical assistance including easy-payment development loans.

Eisenhower also gave notice he might ask for an additional $200,000,000 to begin furnishing intermediate range missiles to European Allies who agree to base them on their territory.

Sloan Appointment Draws Criticism Of CCF Members

VANCOUVER (CP)—The appointment of former chief justice Gordon Sloan as government adviser on forestry matters was criticized here by two CCF party members.

Point Grey CCF club member Cliff Freer said it was "a frantic effort to divert the public's attention from the government's conduct in forestry matters."

In reply Bert Price, Social Credit MLA for Vancouver-Burrard, told the forum the government was fortunate to obtain the services of the former chief justice, whose knowledge of forestry is second to none in the province.

U.S. TO EARN $1.5 MILLION FROM SEAWAY

WASHINGTON (AP)—The St. Lawrence seaway is expected to earn $1,500,000 in tolls for the United States in the first 2½ months of operation, President Eisenhower said today in his budget for the fiscal year starting July 1.

He also estimated that the operating costs of the U.S. part of the international waterway will be about $1,500,000 a year, or $125,000 a month.

The seaway, now under construction, is scheduled to be opened to its maximum 27-foot depth in April, 1959.

Fuchs Resumes Trek, 150 Miles From Pole

WELLINGTON, N.Z. (Reuters)—British explorer Vivian Fuchs reported today that his trans-Antarctic expedition had reached a point 155 miles from the South Pole.

A message received at Scott base said the British party had resumed the trek today after a late start caused by bad weather.

The message did not make clear what progress the party has been making, but it appears to be between 20 and 30 miles a day.

Weather was bad at the South Pole Sunday, with winds up to 45 miles an hour, which is high for that station. The temperature was 5.5 degrees Fahrenheit.

Wings Catch Habit

Detroit Wins Fourth in Row Under Sid Abel

By the Canadian Press

When Sid Abel played for Detroit Red Wings, he was used to a team with a winning habit.

His last season, 1951-52, Wings were in the middle of a streak of seven straight National Hockey League championships. That year they ended 22 points ahead of Montreal Canadiens and swept to the Stanley Cup in the minimum eight games.

When Abel returned to the Wings last week, as their coach, they were in fifth place and for much of the season had been playing tag with Chicago Black Hawks for last place.

For the 39-year-old native of Melville, Sask., the NHL's most valuable player in 1949, the situation had to change—or else. It did.

FOUR STRAIGHT

Since the former centre officially took over from Jim Skinner, Jan. 5, Detroit has played four games—and won them all. The streak, highlighted by two victories this weekend, catapulted Wings into second place.

Detroit whipped Chicago 4-1 Saturday and followed with a 3-2 victory over New York Rangers Sunday. In other games Saturday, Montreal trounced New York 9-3 and Toronto Maple Leafs and Boston Bruins tied 2-2.

Sunday's other games saw Chicago whip Montreal 7-1 and Toronto defeat Boston 5-3.

Wings, ahead of the third-place "Rangers" by one point, trail Canadiens by 18 points.

HOME INJURED

Forbes Kennedy, who joined Wings from Chicago this season, pained Detroit Saturday. He scored two goals with Bob Bailey and Gordie Howe collecting one each.

Howe, who scored his 22nd, was injured and missed Sunday's game, his first absence after playing the last 235 Detroit games.

Alberni Foursome Rules Boys' Roost

The eyes of curlers are upon a Port Alberni high school rink today.

The foursome skipped by sharpshooting Terry Miller took a major step in the direction of the B.C. high school boys' championship—and a berth in the Canadian playdowns—by sweeping the Vancouver Island (zone 1) title in a round-robin series at Nanaimo's curling rink.

Miller, with Don Stevens at third, second Pete Arnet and lead Bruce Spottiswood, clinched the Island crown with a convincing 10-3 victory over

Bill's Bank Book Shows Big Boost

PEBBLE BEACH, Calif. (AP)—Big Bill Casper, a 26-year-old ex-sailor, banked a fat $5,300 today as his winning share of the Bing Crosby golf tournament loot.

With the $2,200 he picked up as third-place finisher in the Los Angeles Open, Casper's cash register has clicked at an average of about $592 per day for 1958.

The 215-pound Californian captured the $4,000 top prize Sunday in Crosby's 72-hole $50,000 event with an 11-under-par score of 277 for a four-stroke lead.

He collected another $1,500 as his amateur partner, former Stanford football star Bob Reynolds, finished second with a best-ball total of 261. That was a stroke off the $2,000 winning pace of pro Jay Hebert and former California amateur champ Roger Kelly.

Canada's lone player in the final round, Toronto's Al Balding, ended with a four-day total of 291, 14 strokes off Casper's pace. Balding was tied with four others for 15th place and picked up $650.

The two other Canadians entered in the tournament, Stan Leonard of Lachute, Que., and Bob Wylie of Calgary, were eliminated after Friday's round.

Casper shot the most sensational hole of the tourney. It was a 135-yard belt with a No. 9 iron on the 11th hole that bounced twice and dropped into the cup for an eagle two.

Second place and $2,400 went to 24-year-old Dave Marr, who carded 281.

Deadlocked at 284 were Dow Finsterwald, Jack Burke, Jr., and Ken Venturi. Their payoff was $1,633.

Tied at 291 with Balding were Walt Burkemo, Lloyd Mangrum, Arnold Palmer and Don Whit.

Taylor Snaps Folk's Skein At Duncan

DUNCAN (Special)—Gar Taylor, Victoria, snapped Tony Folk's two-year Duncan Curling Club bonspiel win skein at 20 games, Sunday night in the final of the Wadsworth primary event.

Five points on the ninth end spelled victory for Taylor, as he took an 11-5 lead and hung on to win 12-8.

Earlier in the day, Folk beat Ole Panzer of Duncan, 9-7, on the twelfth end to take the Wright primary event for the second consecutive year. Last year, Folk won both primary events, going through the four-day spiel with 10 wins and no losses.

Taylor beat Harry Gulka, Nanaimo 10-4, and Folk beat Bob McIntosh, Victoria, 7-6 in the semifinals of the Wadsworth event.

To reach the finals in the Wright event Folk beat Glen Koffski, Nipawin, Sask., 6-3, while Panzer beat Gulka 12-7.

In the semis of the Riverside-Cushanaugh secondary event Bob McIntosh, Victoria, beat Ron Harper, Duncan, 8-3, while Ron Webster, RCN, Victoria, beat Dr. Kirby-Moyssey of Victoria, 10-8. The final round was rout, as McIntosh skinned Webster 15-0 with the last two ends unplayed.

Art Goeder, Vancouver, beat Sam Rycroft's Victoria rink, 11-10, in 13 ends to take the Cowichan secondary event. Goeder reached the finals by defeating Larry Marshall, Victoria, 7-6, while Rycroft beat Pat Ryan, Duncan, by the same score.

The all-Duncan final in the consolation event also went 13 ends with the George Syrotuck rink, skipped by Charlie Strouger, beating Glen Harper, Duncan Curling Club ice-maker 10-8.

Sizzling Debate Takes Place Over Move to Oust Kilburn

Poor Club Record Given As Reason for Decision

Victoria Cougars, deep in the cellar of the Western Hockey League's Coast Division—20 points behind the third-place Seattle Americans—in their first season under community ownership, will complete the current campaign under a new general-manager.

President Dr. Andy Reid announced Sunday evening that Colin Kilburn, who had been playing manager of the club since the start of the 1956-57 season, had been asked to relinquish the manager's position.

Fred Mackenzie will take over the manager's duties immediately, Dr. Reid said.

Following a meeting of the club's board of directors Sunday afternoon, Dr. Reid issued the following statement:

"At an extraordinary meeting of the board of directors of the Victoria Hockey Club (1957) Ltd. held Sunday, it was the unanimous decision of the directors that Colin Kilburn be asked to resign as general manager of the Victoria Cougars. His playing contract has been retained by the club.

"Mr. Fred Mackenzie will take over the office of general manager, with the advice of the executive, and coach Pat Egan will take over full control of the players."

Dr. Reid said that the main reason the directors decided to ask Kilburn to resign as manager was the club's poor record—nine victories and one tie in 39 games—and a belief that the Cougars have suffered from poor player deals.

Several Heated Debates During Meeting

"We have been considering this move for the past month. Fan support has been very encouraging and we could have let things slide, but we have a responsibility to our shareholders. We have not acted hastily. We have gone into all details of the situation carefully and believe we have acted for the best interests of the club."

It is understood that there were several heated debates during the two-hour closed meeting and that Kilburn declared he would not continue to play for the Cougars under the present board of directors.

Dubbed the "Gold Dust Line," the unit quickly became one of the most popular and effective forward lines in the club's history and Kilburn, with his spirited and colorful play, has continued to be one of the league's most potent snipers during his years with Victoria.

He missed three games early in his first season with the Cougars and since then has appeared in 370 successive league games and 22 playoff contests.

Kilburn, who has never scored less than 22 goals in any professional season, had his best two years ago, when he collected 43 goals and 38 assists.

Following the death of general manager Fred Hutchinson in the summer of 1956, Kilburn took over the duties of player, coach and manager.

Spearheaded Drive to Keep Hockey Here

When the club's owners returned the Cougar franchise to the WHL at the end of last season, it was Kilburn who spearheaded the drive that kept professional hockey in the city.

When the drive for funds, which eventually raised more than $32,000, was launched, Kilburn was installed as chairman of the fund committee. And when the club was incorporated shortly before the current season started, Kilburn was again hired as playing coach and general manager.

He asked to be relieved of the coaching duties after the club lost its first nine games and Egan was obtained from Nelson of the Western International Hockey League to serve as playing coach.

The executive, realizing that Kilburn was the driving force in the campaign to keep hockey in Victoria, expressed regret that they felt forced to ask for his resignation.

Some of the directors apparently felt that better leadership could have kept the community-owned Cougars in a contending position.

This morning, both Egan and Mackenzie said they had no statements to make at this time, although both hinted there would be some player changes in the near future.

Cougars will make their first appearance under the new management when they tackle Seattle at Memorial Arena at 8:30 p.m. Wednesday.

Royals Eat Well At Cougar Table

COUGARS 3, ROYALS 4
New Westminster Royals have been atrociously. They act like rich relatives who accept gifts from starving cousins without so much as a polite "thank you."

Royals came a-visitng Saturday night, picked up their gift, and 3-10 onlookers wondered how long Victoria Cougars—the Western Hockey League's famed family—can keep it up.

The gift, it transpires, was a pair of goals that gave Royals a 4-3 victory in a wide-open, crowd-pleasing hockey game. It was New Westminster's 11th victory in 13 games against Cougars.

New Westminster's win total numbers 22 today (good enough to keep them five points behind the front-running Vancouver Canucks), so it is plain to see who is feeding the Royals.

Even some of the 100-plus Royals Fan Club members who visited Victoria's Memorial Arena will admit today that Royals appeared to be a trifle fortunate. They received, among other things, another great reminding chore from Bev Bentley and two third-period goals that pulled New Westminster from behind a 3-2 deficit.

There's nothing you can say about Bentley that hasn't been said before in any of several games against Cougars. But it should be said that Emile Francis also performed brilliantly in the Victoria nets.

Cougars appeared headed for victory until the Royals tied the score, at 3-3, in the third. Victoria defencemen Nels Bullock and goalie Emile Francis batted in opposite directions at a loose puck from in front of the goal.

The puck bounced the wrong way—into the Cougar cage—and Royals took a new lease on life. The tally was credited to Max McNab, his second of the game.

Art Jones scored the winner, 70 seconds before the end of regulation time, when the Cougars fumbled a chance to clear the puck from their own zone.

COLIN KILBURN

'WILL NOT PLAY'

Colin Flails Club Methods

Colin Kilburn, relieved of his duties as manager of Victoria Hockey Club (1957) Ltd. during a meeting of the club's executive directors Sunday afternoon, this morning re-iterated his statement that he would not continue playing for the Cougars under the present board of directors.

Although he had been aware for some time that the directors were considering some changes, Kilburn was stunned by the course of action and bitterly denounced the abruptness of the decision and the procedure adopted.

Kilburn, who declined to discuss any plans for the future should he sever all connections with the Victoria club, said he believed the directors would receive strong protests from the city's hockey fans.

"I am very surprised at the procedure taken by our executive board of directors as several of the directors were not notified of the meeting held Sunday afternoon," Kilburn said.

"And I have not yet received any record that they have accepted my resignation on my terms as suggested by Dr. Andy Reid."

"I was amazed at some remarks made by one of the directors—that I have not shown enough ice time for Victoria when that director has not attended all Cougar home games and has not attended any road games. This was the same director who earlier this season asked why we didn't buy Allan Stanley from Boston Bruins."

"DEAL WAS APPROVED"
"I understand some of the directors are very disappointed over our Marcel Pelletier deal, which was unanimously approved by those same men when it originally took place last summer."

"And I don't hear those same men saying anything about the deal that brought Eddie Doron back to Victoria. That was a deal that involved only one Victoria-owned player (Bill Davidson)."

"In view of the wonderful support that the Victoria hockey fans have given us to date, showing an increase of well over 6,000 admissions and an increase of between three and four thousand dollars in receipts, along with an 80 to 90 per cent increase in children's admissions alone, I am quite surprised that the executive board of directors is panicking," Kilburn said.

"GIVEN 100% EFFORT"
"Considering the fact that I gave up an entire summer to help keep professional hockey in Victoria, I am very let down by the treatment I am now receiving from my executive board of directors."

"I feel that in all the years that I have played hockey for Victoria fans, I have always given them a 100% effort when it was possible."

"However, in view of the stand that the executive directors have taken, and if they should accept my resignation on my terms, I can see no future in Victoria for me or my family."

Warriors Protest Regal Win

Winnipeg Warriors are leading the Western Hockey League's Prairie Division by six points today—but they think it should be eight points.

Warriors romped to a 6-1 victory over Saskatoon-St. Paul Regals at St. Paul Sunday after dropping a 5-4 overtime decision in a game on home ice Saturday, which they claim Regals won because of referee Al Paradise's error.

'Peg officials claim that Paradise merely held up his hand to signal a delayed penalty on Regals' Vic Lynn, when the third-period call should have been immediate. Before the whistle sounded, Bob Chrystal, who later scored the overtime goal, tallied for Regals.

AMEKES IN TIE
Seattle Americans wound up their prairie safari with a 1-1 deadlock with the Stampede before 6,000 Calgary fans Saturday after dropping a 3-2 overtime struggle at Edmonton Friday.

Rudy Pilon sent Seattle ahead at 3:37 of the second period but clever Sid Finney put Dave Duke in the clear for the tying goal less than three minutes later.

At St. Paul Sunday, Ray Ross collected the lone Regal goal, which was deflected twice before getting by goalie Ray Mikulan.

Pete Kapusta paced the Warriors with two goals while Kent Douglas, Howie Glover, Art Stratton and Bruce Lea notched single markers.

MacNutt's, one of the most improved teams in the Lower Island Junior and Juvenile Soccer Association, tossed a king-sized scare into the undefeated first division leaders Sunday.

Optimists appeared off to an easy win by moving into a 3-0 lead at the half. Before it was over, however, MacNutt's had the leaders hanging on the ropes. Optimists finally escaped with a 3-2 victory.

Three Tied For Medal Golf Lead

If Sunday's opening round is any indication, then the second of the winter season's monthly medal matches is going to be a wide-open scramble.

Nine players were bracketed at the top of the pack with only three strokes serving as the margin of difference between first and fourth place.

Playing the tricky, windswept Victoria Golf Club, three players matched Oak Bay's par 69 to share the first-round lead. They were Dr. George Bigelow of the host club, Gorge Vale's Art Donaldson and Ron Cuth.

Colwood's Bill McColl finished with a 70 while Ralph Cossey and Laurie Kerr, winner of the first series, were another stroke off the pace.

John Merriman, Danny McLean and Stan Balluk, the Victoria Cougar hockey player who had his first look at Oak Bay, all scored three-over-par 72s to share fourth place.

Tight Squeeze Again, But Vikings Roll Along

Victoria College Vikings, displaying some of the drive that they hope will carry them to a Canadian Junior Basketball championship, Saturday edged the University of British Columbia JV's, 75-72, at Victoria High School.

The victory, their second in a row over the UBC squad, extended Vikings' win streak to nine games.

Saturday's game was the first of a series of Saturday night exhibition matches that Vikings have scheduled in order to keep in trim for their bid for the Canadian junior championship early in March.

Vikings, defending Western Canadian junior champs, recently dropped out of the Victoria Senior "B" League due to the pressure of studies.

TOM LEADS WAY

Top man in the Viking attack was Tom English, who contributed 16 of his 26 points in the second half to keep College in the lead as the JV's pressed hard.

Also adding his share was lanky Bob Tomlinson, the big gun of the first half when he dropped in 17 of his 20-point total.

For UBC, Doug Jennings and Ivor Bruhaug combined in a spirited attempt to improve on a poor first half. Down, 42-28, at the midway point, JV's dropped 20 points back in the third quarter before Jennings and Bruhaug started their spree. Jennings hooped 17 of his 24 points in the last half, while Bruhaug scored 12 of his 20 points after the intermission.

In a preliminary game, G. Reid scored 21 points to lead Ladysmith to a 54-46 win over Vic College Norsemen. F. Mann contributed 16 points to the Ladysmith total, while Goldie led the Norsemen attack with 11 points.

Scorers follow:

Kickers, United Post Shutouts In Soccer League

Shutouts seemed to be the order of the day in Victoria and District Football League play, but Canadian Scottish missed the boat Sunday because of their rather extraordinary scoring ability.

Scottish, the circuit's highest-scoring combination, scored all the game's goals as they took over second place in the league standing with a 3-1 conquest of Gorge Hotel. The Scots' net-minder missed his shutout when one of his own fullbacks inadvertently booted the ball into his cage.

Sunday shutouts were chalked up by Victoria Kickers, who blanked Heaneys 4-0, and Punjab United, who clipped Hungarians 5-0. Esquimalt tripped Tilliums, the first-half schedule winners, 2-1 in the day's other game.

LEADERS IDLE

Playing at Central Park, Scottish took a 2-1 lead at the half on counters by Tappy Jones and Bill Ackincoe. Neil Stanley's second-half goal clinched matters and pushed Scots to within two points of Brodie's Bakery, idle during the weekend. The loss was the first for Gorge in the second half of the league schedule.

Kickers pushed in three second-half goals to win their game at Beacon Hill Park in handy fashion. Victory boosted Kickers in a tie for third with Esquimalt and Gorge. Tom Major, Herman Schemitsch, Willi Voht and Dick Nellesstijn counted for Kickers.

George Paul scored both goals at Topaz Avenue Park to give Esquimalt the close win over Tilliums, who trailed 1-0 at the interval. Morris Bunyan was the Tillium marksman.

Punjab won their first game in much the same manner as Kickers. Leading 1-0 at the half, the United side insured victory with four second-half goals. George Brown and Frances Johnny each connected for two while Eugene Thorne added the fifth.

Gutoski Moves In High Gear On Playoff Path

It's a long way to the Canadian finals, but at the rate Tony Gutoski has been going, don't be too surprised if the Victoria Celling Club ice-maker makes it. Gutoski's foursome won their ninth straight game Saturday night since embarking on the path that leads to the Macdonald Tankard. His ninth victory, first game of the Vancouver Island (Zone 1) round-robin playdowns, was a 14-6 victory over clubmate Gerry Walls.

Earlier Saturday evening, Walls qualified as the second Victoria rink to reach the Island finals by edging Wilkie Gardner 10-9 in an extra-end thriller. Walls and Gutoski join two rinks from each of the Duncan, Nanaimo and Alberni clubs in the Island playdowns. Rinks from each centre meet on home ice in an effort to save time, when the round-robin series gets under way at Nanaimo next weekend.

SANDOWN OVAL TO GET 14-DAY MEETING AGAIN

Horse racing, with provincial and federal government approval, will cover 92 days this year at three tracks in the Vancouver and Victoria areas.

Racetrack operators have proposed a season opening May 16 at Exhibition Park, Vancouver, and concluding Oct. 6 at Sandown Park in Sidney, with 39 days in between at Lansdowne Park on Lulu Island.

Exhibition Park would also have 39 days, while Sandown would have 14. The dates include one charity day each at Exhibition and Lansdowne. The request would provide racing days almost identical with 1957.

MINOR HOCKEY

Too Many Take It As Matter-of-Fact

A night honoring Victoria's minor hockey players will be staged in Memorial Arena, January 27, as part of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association's Minor Hockey Week program.

The Minor Hockey Week, which the CAHA inaugurated last year with overwhelming success across Canada, is being staged in an effort to focus greater public attention on the players, programs and general benefits of minor hockey.

Victoria and District Minor Hockey Association president Doug Fletcher said six games will be played at Memorial Arena, the first starting at 7 p.m. Feature attraction will be a midget all-star game between Victoria and Nanaimo.

Fletcher also said the HMCS Naden Band will be in attendance and Mayor Percy Scourrah will participate in opening ceremonies. Various door prizes will be given away and tickets for the event can be purchased at the Victoria Cougar ticket office.

Saturday's results in pee-wee division action, standings, scorers and this week's minor schedule follow:

GOOD TURNOUTS

As Long as Fans Happy...

Let it not be said that Victoria's soccer players aren't appreciative.

Fan support at district matches has been "very good" in the eyes of players and Victoria and District Football League officials. There was, for example, a turnout of more than 600 at Royal Athletic Park for Saturday's exhibition between Victoria All-Stars and Sapperton Athletic Club of Vancouver.

The All-Stars rewarded their faithful with a handsome display of soccer, not to mention a 3-1 victory, that undoubtedly will bring the customers back for more.

The victory, convincing

proof that Victoria can keep pace with mainland entries, maintained All-Stars' undefeated streak against Vancouver teams. All-Stars now have won two and tied one against mainland opposition.

Bill Ackincoe, standout scorer with Canadian Scottish, paced the Stars with a pair of brilliant goals. Antol Major added the third while centre forward Larry Crisp tallied for Sapperton.

Picketing Stops 'Moonlighters' On Housing Work

Mass picketing against "moonlighters" stopped weekend work at a new subdivision here.

Some 13 men working on houses in the 30-house subdivision on the old Lansdowne airfield went home Saturday afternoon after 50 members of the Vancouver Island Building

Trades Council set up placard lines around the project.

"None of them showed up Sunday when we returned," James Moffat, council president, said today. "If there is any evidence of work going on next weekend, the placard lines will have to be continued."

MEET TODAY

He added the council executive was to meet today to decide whether regular placard lines should be set up through the week as well.

Saturday he said the workers were "breaking down the conditions which we have established. They are putting legitimate employers at a disadvantage because they can't break even, competing with scab labor."

6,000 JOBLESS

Donald S. Bushell, council secretary, said an end to the weekend work was sought because of the current unemployment situation which saw almost 6,000 out of work here last week.

"If a man can't make a living on a 40-hour week, he shouldn't be in business," he said.

He said most of the "moonlighters" were working for less than union rates and "some of them are paid below the government minimum of $1.50 an hour for tradesmen."

Victor Midgley, carpenters representative, said the weekend work was a violation of the Hours of Work Act but the government had refused to act despite complaints.

He said part of the blame rested on immigration policy which allowed flooding of the labor market but he called for deportation of immigrants who "don't want to live our way of life and who break our laws."

CHOSEN IN MAY

'Miss Victoria' Can Go Far, Win Good Prizes

Victoria's fairest will be chosen here in May.

Selection of "Miss Victoria," which carries with it numerous local prizes and the chance to compete for the "Miss Canada" title, and if the winner of the national competition to compete for the "Miss Universe" crown, will be made at the Junior Chamber of Commerce fair May 12 to 17.

She will be selected from eight finalists and as the winner will receive a $100 cheque, clothing valued at more than $400, and will be entered in the "Miss Canada" pageant later this year in Hamilton, Ont.

The princesses will each receive a $50 cheque and clothing prizes.

Entry rules are the same as for the "Miss Canada" event. Contestants must be single, have a minimum of three years high school, possess charm of face and figure, show a specific talent such as singing, dancing, or playing a musical instrument, be between the ages of 18 and 26 inclusive, and may be of either amateur or professional standing.

Talent will win 30 points, personality and deportment 25, beauty 25 and general intelligence 20 points.

If selected "Miss Canada," Victoria's entrant will receive a $1,000 scholarship, a trip across Canada and a trip to England and Europe, and a trip to Atlantic City for the "Miss America" contest which offers $30,000 in rewards.

She will get a $100 scholarship in Hamilton whether she wins or not.

NINTH YEAR

This will be the ninth year the Jaycees here have sponsored the brains-plus-beauty competition.

Five judges will be appointed to reduce the number of contestants to the eight finalists. These girls will be featured, two per night, in a fashion show at the fair, with all eight appearing the final night for the selection of Miss Victoria.

Entries should be phoned to Mr. Jamieson at 3-4521 or 5-3069.

CAREFUL SHOPPING

NIGHT BIKING TALKS SET

Children in Greater Victoria schools will be warned this week of the danger of riding bicycles not equipped with proper lights and reflectors.

The lectures will be given by teachers of all grades in co-operation with a police commission campaign to cut down hazards of night biking.

Municipal school inspector John Gough said the school board sent a circular to all principals and teachers asking them to explain regulations on bicycle lights to the children.

Victorians Must Wait Until February for More Centennial Silver Dollars

Most Greater Victorians who want one of the centennial silver dollars immediately are out of luck until next month at least.

A survey of bankers today showed only token shipments, totalling 1,700, have arrived here so far—an average of slightly more than 60 for each of the 27 bank branches in the area.

The coins were snapped up "like hotcakes" as soon as they arrived last week, bankers said. They went to persons who had put in their orders early.

But waiting lists are still piled high in the memo files of each branch, ready for further trickles of the special coins expected this week and next.

One bank official said he did not expect an ample supply of the souvenir dollars until February when the Bank of Canada should be caught up on the initial orders placed by banks here.

Quick filling of orders was frustrated when the Mint in Ottawa had to revert to production of smaller coins during its first run of the special issue, it is understood.

However, one banker said initial shortages of special issues were normal occurrences.

The coins were shipped to Vancouver offices of the chartered banks where each bank, in turn, pro rated distribution among its B.C. branches. Next shipment to Vancouver is due Wednesday.

Bankers here agreed there was a "terrific" demand for the dollars, despite an Indian controversy over the totem pole design, which included warnings that the dollars were "death money."

The controversy took a new turn in Vancouver over the weekend when a prominent Indian disagreed with earlier suggestions that the design was of a mortuary pole that would put a curse on all who carried the coin.

Rev. Peter Kelly, of the Haida, said the design was a copy of a Haida house pole—the contention of Provincial Museum officials and historians.

But Guy Williams, of the Native Brotherhood of B.C., said the totem depicted has even more dire significance

than his original charge that it was a funeral totem of the Tsimpsan tribe.

Williams claims it represents an unfaithful wife and a vengeful husband and has an unsavory legend attached to it; so unsavory that he will not reveal details.

However, it was understood that a delegation of the Native Brotherhood was to see Premier W. A. C. Bennett this afternoon to express support for the design.

A B.C. centennial committee official said Victoria's totem-carving Chief Mungo Martin had convinced the brotherhood leaders that the souvenir design was not a mortuary totem.

MONTE ROBERTS

Dots and crosses . . .

Morris Greene, who loves publicity the way a teenage boy loves spinach, will no doubt drop a large oil drum on my head for reporting this . . . but I do think the carping critics who object to the appearance of his ship-breaking pier at Ogden Point should know this . . . the carping critics, you may remember, objected because the "junk" on Morris' leased portion of the pier might not look pretty when Ss. Leilani docks here, at a flood-lighted mooring—for their information, the floodlights are being loaned and installed, free of charge, by—of course—Morris Greene. . . .

While we're on the waterfront, try this for a complicated coincidence. . . . Sa. Baron Inverclyde is at Esquimalt for repairs . . . her master, Capt. Reid, is from Glasgow . . . an area well known to the McKeechie family, who are so prominent in shipping circles . . . when Alex McKeechie, Jr., learned that Capt. Reid was ill, he wondered who in the world his replacement might be . . . and it turns out to be Capt. Gibson, whose wife is a cousin of his mother, Mrs. Alex McKeechie, Sr. . . . to round it out, loading of the ship is in the hands of Empire Stevedoring, and is the particular responsibility of Alex McKeechie, Jr. . . .

The whimsical fictioneer who writes so entertainingly about wacky animals. . . . Don Tracy is his name . . . has done more for the expansion of Canada in one paragraph than Canada has been able to do in the last 100 years. . . . to quote from a short story in the SatEvePost: "there were people there from all 48 states and the 12 provinces of Canada . . ." Thanks for the dozen, cousin. . . .

It is with personal regret that I note the departure of announcer-operator Norm Pringle from CKDA . . . not that we could always see ear to ear in the matter of Elvis Presley, but still, Pring produced pleasant entertainment, gave his all in various community efforts, and as a person is one of the best . . . also one of the most knowledgeable men I've seen around a radio console. . . . I hope you have your future taped the way you want it, Pring . . . and play it at the right speed. . . .

The indefatigable Reb Mowat is on hand with another idea . . . suggests the famed old ex-London taxi Piccadilly Nell, now owned by Dusty Miller of the Princess Mary restaurant vessel, should be driven cross-Canada as a centenary promotion. . . . I'm surprised at Reb's lack of imagination . . . why not have the Princess Mary circumnavigate North America as a centennial project? . . . I take that back . . . where would everybody have coffee while she's away? . . .

I have been trying to avoid this, but Judy Boots Streak, the female-type doggie who lives at our house, insists . . . she says she's not hinting, but there are only two more days left to send her all those letters and cards for her birthday . . . which is Wednesday. . . .

COMET LANDS PEARKES HERE

A sleek De Havilland Comet I, first of its type ever to land at Patricia Bay Airport, arrived here Saturday with Defence Minister George Pearkes aboard, and will remain at the airport until Wednesday.

Extensively modified and operated by the RCAF, the big four-jet aircraft is a sister of the first jet aircraft to take to the air on commercial service. Its cruising speed is in the vicinity of 500 miles per hour.

Fair, Racing at Colwood Likely by Summer of '59

A first-class exhibition ground and race track likely will be in operation on the site of the old Colwood race track by the summer of 1959.

It probably will open immediately after the Pacific National Exhibition in Vancouver in August that year, giving exhibitors, stockmen and racehorse owners the opportunity of moving direct from the mainland to the Island.

"This will give stockmen and racehorse owners in other parts of Canada a much-needed extra incentive in coming to the coast," a spokesman for the B.C. Agricultural Association said today.

$1 MILLION

The exhibition ground and race track—expected to be built at a cost exceeding $1,000,000—will be built on 130 acres of land at Colwood which was occupied by the Army during the war and latterly for naval stores.

It is now idle.

A long-term lease between the national defence department and the B.C. Agricultural Association is expected to be announced "within the next two weeks," the BCAA official said.

In Victoria today, Defence Minister G. R. Pearkes, VC, confirmed that his department is prepared to lease the property and terms of the lease are now being studied.

"But we are not disposing of the property," he added.

SUB-LET TRACK

The BCAA official said: "We are not directly concerned with the racetrack as that would be operated by another party on a sub-letting basis."

"We don't yet know who that party will be."

It is known that the Island Turf Club Ltd. and the Randall track at Sidney, which operate the Sandown Track at Sidney, are actively concerned.

If the Randall interests, secured the sub-lease, it is understood they would continue the Sandown track as a secondary incentive to racehorse owners to bring their horses to the Island.

MEET NEXT WEEK

The BCAA official said a final meeting to discuss leasing the Colwood property probably will be held next week.

"The racing end of it is important," he said, "but we are naturally more interested in providing a first-class exhibition ground.

"We are actually the only city in Canada which does not have a grade A agricultural fair."

Even if the lease is signed next week, it will take at least a year before the property will be ready for use. Hundreds of thousands of dollars will have to be spent on the racetrack, grandstand and barns.

It is understood that if Island

Turf Club Ltd., gets the race track lease, it would try to purchase the Randall interests at Sandown Park, shifting the racing to Colwood and keeping Sandown as a training track.

There is also a possibility that the Island Turf Club and the Randall interests may join forces to develop racing at Colwood.

Part of the old track is still there. Up to 1936 it was in active use for horse racing.

Discipline Asked For Sikh Minister

A section of B.C.'s Sikh community will ask officials of the Sikh religion in India for disciplinary action against Munshi Singh, Sikh minister of the Topaz Street Dwan Temple, for holding up to ridicule the "turban."

The turban worn by many Sikhs is a sacred symbol of their religion.

The Sikhs at a two-day meeting at the Vancouver Akali Temple this weekend ruled the Sikh minister offended their religion when he allowed his picture to appear in conjunction with a Times article which stated that the wearing of the turban was on "the way out in B.C."

The article quoted Kuldeep Singh, a leading member of the East Indian community, as saying that if Guru Gobind Singh, the spiritual ruler of the Sikhs was alive today, he would suggest to his adherents in B.C. to "go modern" and to "visit a barber and buy a hat."

"I wouldn't be surprised if Munshi Singh is asked to resign his position as Sikh minister," said Mohinder Singh, secretary of the Akali Temple. "A serious offence has been committed."

The Vancouver meeting called a "punishment," was attended by about 15 East Indians representing Sikh communities from all parts of the province. It was presided over by five men attired in military dress and equipped with swords.

The members made a pledge that Sikhs in B.C. will continue to wear the turban and uphold the principles of their religion.

Mohinder Singh said Mr. Bains insulted the spiritual leader of Sikhism when he suggested that Sikhs discard their turbans and beads.

"His statements are bitterly resented by all East Indians," said Mohinder Singh.

He explained the spiritual leader of the Sikhs instructed all his followers to wear the turban, long hair, a comb, a bracelet and shorts.

"It is written in the holy books that if any Sikh, once baptized, cuts his hair or wears a hat, he will suffer a leper in his seven succeeding lives according to the principles of transmigration of souls," explained Mohinder Singh.

Mohinder Singh claimed that Kuldeep Singh was not a "Sikh," and could not be regarded as a spokesman for the East Indian community.

Woodward's Proposal Before Council Tonight

Saanich municipal yard, near the junction of Patricia Bay and Trans-Canada Highways, is now under consideration as site for a proposed $7,000,000 Woodward's Ltd. department store.

A letter from the firm will come before Saanich Council tonight.

The scheme to build the new store on the site of Victoria city hall is now said to be "almost all off."

Saanich Reeve Arthur Ash said the letter to come before his council tonight is from local Woodward's manager J. Courtney Haddock. He proposed to take whatever decisions are reached by council to the store board of directors in Vancouver "without any delay."

"I have been having talks with Mr. Haddock," said Reeve Ash, "and he told me the arrangements with the city are almost all off and arrangements have broken down."

"I told Mr. Haddock Saanich would be willing to discuss the possibility of Woodward's locating in Saanich. I think council will be willing to negotiate sale of the municipal yards."

"Council will discuss the possibilities further at this meeting."

A council committee has been working for some time to locate a new site for the municipal yards.

The shifting of interest by the department store firm to Saanich follows two months of negotiations in downtown Victoria.

Early in November the store chose the site of City Hall, the Market Building, Fire Hall and adjacent properties as its number one choice.

The city and the firm were close together on appraised values of the city property. The firm purchased options on numerous stores in the area. Word that options were being taken leaked, however, and some were bought which stipulated prices since declared "unrealistic" by the firm.

Three private property owners have so far been unable to reach agreement, although Mayor Percy Scurrell said the prices offered were above real market values.

If the store goes ahead with a deal in Saanich, it will be a serious blow to the city, officials say.

Although Victoria has plans underway for a new fire hall in any event, it will mean an indefinite delay in plans to construct a new city hall.

Mayor Scurrell had hinted a deal was possible where the firm would trade property it owns facing Pandora, Blanshard and Cormorant as part payment for the city property.

Deadline for negotiations in the city, the date when options will expire, was given as Jan. 18.

Mr. Haddock's only statement was to confirm Reeve Ash's remarks.

Midnight Ferry To Vancouver Cancelled Tonight

There was no steamship service between Victoria and Seattle today, and the midnight sailing of the B.C. Coast Steamship Service to Vancouver tonight also has been cancelled.

Ss. Princess Elizabeth developed starboard propeller trouble Sunday which forced cancellation of the runs today.

After limping into Victoria Sunday, Elizabeth "deadheaded" back to Vancouver to enter Burrard Drydock for repairs.

She will be on the job again Tuesday.

Seven Injured In Weekend Road Accidents

Seven persons were given hospital treatment as a result of weekend traffic crashes in Greater Victoria.

Biggest pile-up was at the intersection of Old West Saanich and West Saanich Roads where cars driven by Donald M. Baker, 4331 Shelbourne, and Hendrik Van Boven, 3615 Richmond, were in collision.

The car driven by Baker then went out of control as a result of the collision and was forced into the path of an auto being driven by Robert H. Cunningham, Royal Oak.

WET ROADS

Mrs. Helen Cunningham was taken to Jubilee Hospital with knee and forehead cuts and Mrs. Dorothy Van Boven was examined for slight injuries.

Police said the roads were wet and it was raining heavily at the time of the accident, about 8 p.m.

Estimated damage to Baker's car was $700; to Van Boven's, $350 and to Cunningham's $300.

At 5:10 p.m. Sunday Mrs. Julian Karpick, 27, 3268 Alder, was treated at St. Joseph's Hospital as a result of an accident on Trans-Canada Highway, which also injured her 14-month-old son Mark.

Mrs. Karpick had foot abrasions, her son was treated for a bruised forehead. Both were discharged.

Oscar Ludvickson, 59, 3278 Oak, was treated for forehead, shoulder and hip abrasions at St. Joseph's after he was involved in an accident at Douglas and Cloverdale Sunday at 6:45 p.m.

About an hour earlier, in the city, Mrs. Margaret Ford, 36, 1048 Pandora, was taken to Jubilee for treatment of head injury and shock received when the car in which she was riding was in collision with another car at Johnson and Quadra.

Driver of the car, Kenneth O. Ford, 1048 Pandora, was examined for a possible arm injury and discharged.

Police said driver of the other car was George W. Jenkins, 3937 Douglas.

ASK THE TIMES

Q.—Will you please tell me when the Chinese New Year is celebrated in 1958, also what the numerical year is, and whether it is considered a lucky year or not? M. C. L.

A.—The year 4,654 is celebrated February 13 this year. It is considered a lucky year, although no member of the Chinese community here seemed to know why this is the case. At one time the New Year was marked here with dances and letting off of fireworks, but today observations are limited to the older Chinese of the 3,600-person community.

The year 4,654 dates back to the year of the first established and recorded Chinese kingdom.

Anyone wishing a question answered is invited to send the problem along to The Times, addressed to "Ask The Times" Editor. Questions and answers will be published daily.

The money will be forwarded to the Unitarian Services Committee, sponsors of "T-Bricks" at Ottawa.

Saanich council will meet for its regular business session of the year tonight at 7:30 in the Royal Oak Women's Institute hall.

High Awards Won in East By Local Mink

Nine prizes and a record price for the sale of a single animal were scored at the annual Milwaukee International Mink Show, Jan. 10-12, by Owens & Son Mink Ranch, Colwood.

The local farm won the prize for the champion dark mink of the show, then sold the winning animal for $2,500, believed the highest price ever paid in the industry.

Also won were the championship for sapphires; third, fifth and tenth for pastel males and fifth for pastel females; second and fifth for taupe males and fifth for taupe females.

The ranch sent 14 animals to the show, considered the leading mink exhibition in the world, and they were shown by Bert Owens, partner with his son Bob in the Colwood farm, and noted pigeon fancier.

The University Women's Club of Victoria will meet on Wednesday at 8 p.m. in the Business and Professional Women's Clubrooms.

Speaker will be Stickney Harris, lighting consultant with the B.C. Electric, and Willard Ireland, provincial archivist, will outline the future plans for Victoria College.

Ray, Frederick Cote, Work Point, was fined $250 and his licence was suspended in city police court Saturday on a charge of impaired driving.

Police said Cote was involved in an accident, early Friday at the Fountain Circle, causing about $600 damage to his own and a parked car.

An Otter Point resident, Morris Corrie, was fined $25 in Sooke RCMP court Saturday for carrying an unlicensed fire arm.

Board will be asked by Victoria council finance committee whether it can send someone to Ottawa for a course in urban renewal. The course, sponsored by Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation, a crown corporation, will outline how communities can obtain federal assistance in razing rundown areas in a city and launching modern redevelopment programs. The four-week course starts Feb. 3.

Winter rehearsal schedule of the Victoria Choral Society will be resumed Tuesday night at 7:30 p.m. at the Christ Church Cathedral Memorial Hall, Vancouver Street. Important work is planned and additional voices are required in all sections of the chorus, according to an announcement by the director, Graham Steed.

A $500 grant for decoration of Memorial Arena and Victoria Curling Club when the Macdonald Brier Curling Championships are held here in March, was recommended by Victoria council finance committee today. The committee will also ask a dinner be held for 150 play-down officials. The event takes place March 3 to 7.

Edward Stefanik, 18, 1127 Catherine, and Peter F. Mould, 18, 961 Wollaston, each were fined $15 in city police court today for being minors in possession of liquor.

Deadline for application by groups wishing to hold tag days was set today as March 31. City council finance committee will accept all requests, decide how many tag days should be permitted, and choose which requests should be granted.

Victoria council finance committee today recommended appointment of William Wallace as city business tax collector.

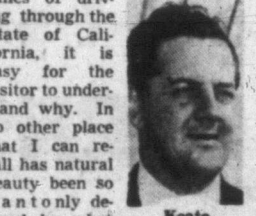

Mr. Wallace was previously collector for trade licences. When business tax was introduced the collection responsibility was placed under comptroller Dennis A. Young, who now feels the duty requires full-time supervision.

Oh! Look at Your Clothes—Better Have 'Em Cleaned!

By PENNY SAVER

Have you taken a look in your clothes closet lately? I don't want to seem nosy, but after looking at the state of my wardrobe, I thought you might like the hint. As a result of sitting in cars and on buses, I've a good many creased and crumpled effects.

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Join Marathon Now; You Owe It to Yourself

Women generally are so busy planning for and caring for most of their families that they may neglect themselves without realizing it. We so often hear women say, "I do not have time to exercise or take little rest periods during the day."

They do not have time because they do not take time to do those things which give us added zest and life added bloom.

Yet we all owe ourselves something. We have a debt to ourselves to remain as young for as long as we can, to protect our health and our looks. We owe it to ourselves and to those who love us.

Why not concentrate on YOU this next eight weeks? As most of you know, I print my 8-Week Self-Improvement Marathon.

each year at this time. Marathon does not take much of your time each day but it will bring you great results. Not only are the immediate results lovely, but during this eight weeks you will form the habit of beauty and health care. Once the habit is yours, it will seem as easy as eating three meals a day and sleeping every night. You will also form a taste for the essential foods and will lose much of your longing for the rich bits which do little for you. There is no habit stronger than the one we form in food likes and dislikes.

If you have been planning to join Marathon each year, but have procrastinated, or if you have meant to write for the booklet this week but haven't, do not delay any longer. You will have company, the spirit of competition, and my help.

If you would like to join my 8-Week Self-Improvement Marathon, send 10 cents and a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request for the Marathon booklet. Address Josephine Lowman in care of this newspaper.

On Etiquette

More on heirlooms for presents:

I was interested in your recent column about giving family heirlooms for Christmas presents. I am another who is moving from a large house to a small apartment. My niece and her husband have gone completely modern with their new house, decor and furnishings.

I have my grandmother's rocking chair and a magnificent walnut grandfather's clock which are collectors' items according to an antique dealer.

I can't sell them, but would like to give them to my niece. They are decidedly far removed from modern and I wonder what you think. I wouldn't want to put my niece in an embarrassing or awkward spot.

Louise Davis answers:

First of all, approach your niece and tell her that you would like to give her the two antiques to her but only if she would really like to have them and that it wouldn't hurt her feelings a bit if she rejects the idea, for you would understand. If she has a one-track mind concerning contemporary decor, she may not relish mixing the old and the new. But if she has blessed herself with a wider vision and scope, she may welcome your offer. Modern decor, if in good taste, can be interesting and exciting. With that one-track mind, it can be cold and stark, but sometimes can be relieved with enough "old" to pull it together as a more livable looking home. I understand that this is a new trend. The rocking chair is rocking itself right back into the modern picture. The chimes and tick-tock of grandfather's clocks are also coming out of storage and antique shops to grace the contemporary scene to give their owners some realization that tangible heritage is comforting to have around.

Defence Spending
Tops U.S. Budget

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower put before the United States Congress today a record peace-time budget just short of $74,000,000,000.

By far the largest part of it, almost two-thirds, is for defence against growing danger from Russia in "the dawning age of space conquest."

The president disclosed that the government now expects to wind up in the red for the fiscal year ending June 30, and he announced his intention to ask for a short-term increase in the present $275,000,000,000 limit on the national debt.

VOICES OF CONFIDENCE

But he voiced confidence that business will pick up and tax receipts will increase so that the new $73,900,000,000 budget, for the 1958-59 fiscal year, will be in balance. He said he expects a surplus of $500,000,000 or so, compared with the $400,000,000 deficit now in sight for this year.

The White House announced in advance that Eisenhower's budget message, which ran to some 22,000 words with a mass of figures attached, would outline a domestic program largely passed over in last Thursday's "state of the union" message.

It did. But, like the earlier message, it put heaviest emphasis on security matters with a $39,800,000,000 request for the defence forces alone. With this expected boost, almost $2,000,000,000 higher than last January's estimate, Eisenhower asked:

1. A $3,800,000,000 increase in spending for missile and nuclear weapon research and production. This would give the defence department an extra $1,300,000,000 to spend as soon as the money is appropriated.

CITY HOCKEY CRISIS

FULL MEETING ASKED

HUTCHISON FROM OTTAWA

Times Editor
Sees Pearson
Easy WinnerBy BRUCE HUTCHISON
Editor of the Times

OTTAWA—The Liberal party convention opening here Tuesday will launch Canada into a major political crisis only a few days later.

In the first phase of the complicated manoeuvres now under way, the initiative will rest with the new Liberal leader, presumably Mr. L. B. Pearson.

In the second phase the initiative will pass to Prime Minister Diefenbaker.

The third phase, a general election, will be settled by the voters.

Phase One can hardly be delayed beyond the first days of next week when Mr. Pearson faces Parliament for the first time as Leader of the Opposition and must then decide to defeat the government, as he can easily do, or to maintain it in office for the time being.

How will Mr. Pearson choose between these only available alternatives? That is the first great unknown of the developing crisis. The decision will not be easy.

If Mr. Pearson continues the Liberal party's strategy of recent weeks, attacks the government but refuses to move a vote of want of confidence the government will taunt him with the charge of timidity and fear of the electors.

If he moves such a motion and is supported by the CCF as probably he would be, the government will fall.

That schedule would suit the government perfectly. Caught in a net of unforeseen problems economic and financial the government is financing for a chance to postpone them and hide its budgetary deficits until it can escape to the country and win a majority. But for this escape it needs a reasonable excuse which so far the Liberal party has refused to supply by opposing any government policy in a parliamentary vote.

Caught in Net of Problems

If Mr. Pearson provides that excuse by a want of confidence motion next week, Mr. Diefenbaker, it is expected, will move into the second stage of the crisis by dissolving Parliament within hours of an unfavorable vote. That would mean an election less than two months later, toward the latter days of March. Preparations to this end already are under way in the Conservative Party from coast to coast, in case Mr. Diefenbaker decides on a quick lunge. He may

BOWTIES MUSHROOM

'Mike' All the Way
With West Delegates

OTTAWA (CP)—A trainload of some 300 Western Liberals arrived early today with many of the delegates proclaiming themselves in favor of Lester B. Pearson for the party leadership.

As a band struck up a welcoming tune, local supporters for Mr. Pearson appeared with huge cardboard bowties and hat placards proclaiming: "I like Mike."

Mr. Mackay, colorful 43-year-old mayor, who tossed his big, white cowboy hat into the leadership ring, now is wondering whether he shouldn't yank it out and get behind the bow-tied Mr. Pearson.

As the delegates got out of their 11-car train into the railway station, Mr. Pearson mixed among them, along with Mayor Don Mackay of Calgary, another leadership candidate who says he may decide to withdraw and back Mr. Pearson.

The other candidates, Mr. Martin and Mayor H. L. Henderson of Portage la Prairie, Man., were not around. Mr. Henderson, a Presbyterian minister, said he will wage a campaign without posters or "cowboy show." Mr. Martin said he was "too busy" meeting delegates elsewhere.

Seems th' Cougar members hev lots of objectives, but not equif goals.

Club Shareholders
Want Full StoryBy DOUG FEDEX
Times Sports Editor

(See sports pages for further details)

Troubles in the ranks of Victoria's community-owned hockey club, heated by the Cougars' poor record, reached a climax at a directors' meeting Sunday afternoon when it was decided to ask playing general-manager Colin Kilburn for his resignation as manager.

Club treasurer Fred Mackenzie was named to replace Kilburn.

Although the club has managed to win only nine and tie one of 39 Western Hockey League games this season and Kilburn has been asked to remain with the club as a player, the decision hit the city's hockey fans like a bombshell.

First definite reaction was a move by a group of shareholders to petition for a general meeting of the membership to obtain a full explanation of the reasons behind the ouster move.

Club president Dr. Andy Reid said the directors believed they had taken the right course to assure the future of good hockey in Victoria. One of the main reasons for the decision, he said, was the Cougars' failure to play up to its "paper strength" in WHL competition this season.

DEFENSE ACTION

"We might have let the matter slide until the end of the season," Dr. Reid said today, "but we have a responsibility to the shareholders and believe we have taken the right course. I will welcome a chance to meet the shareholders and explain the reasons behind our decision. And I will be pleased to answer any accusations made by Kilburn. This was not a hasty decision. We have been considering it for the past month."

It has been known for several weeks that some directors believed Kilburn was taking too much power into his own hands and not consulting them on all his transactions. Some also blamed dissonance on the club to Kilburn's inability to get along with all the players.

Announcement of the request for the resignation came as a surprise to most fans because Kilburn, more than any other man, provided the spark that ignited the drive for funds last summer which kept professional hockey in Victoria

Acheson Hits
Of Canada

NEW YORK (UP)—Ex-

secretary of state Dean Acheson called on the United States today to stop treating Canada with "thoughtlessness, ignorance and bad manners."

Acheson, who served as head of the state department in the Truman administration, appealed for a greater export of American capital to unify the free world through industrial growth and a common belief in practical ideals of liberty. He said the people who are willing to work the hardest ultimately will win the cold war.

Acheson's appeal was made in a book published today, "Power and Diplomacy."

In one facet of his general review of the west's position, he said that "all is not going well in our hemisphere. In Canada resentment against the United

Nikita Suggests
Canada Take Lead
On Summit Parley

OTTAWA (CP)—Russian Premier Bulganin, in his latest letter to Prime Minister Diefenbaker, says the Soviet would welcome the initiative of Canada in organizing negotiations between East and West on international problems, particularly disarmament.

"Here, in Moscow, the reports of the intention of your government to assist in organizing negotiations between the statesmen of East and the West on questions of disarmament and other international problems have not passed unnoticed," Bulganin said in the letter, delivered to Mr. Diefenbaker Friday by Soviet Ambassador Dmitri Chuvahin.

"Undoubtedly, we would welcome the efforts of the Canadian government in this direction as well as the initiative of Canada in drawing together the points of view of the parties on some or other international questions and, in particular, on the problem of disarmament."

Suspension of Nuclear Tests

He proposed the meeting discuss immediate cessation for a period of two or three years of hydrogen and atomic bomb tests, pledges by the U.S., Britain and Russia not to use these weapons, creation of an atomic buffer zone in central Europe and a non-aggression pact between the NATO and Warsaw alliances.

"We hope," Bulganin said, "that your Mr. Diefenbaker's recent statements as well as statements of the members of your government on the readiness of Canada to carry on negotiations with the U.S.S.R. will predominate the favorable attitude of the Canadian government toward the proposal advanced by us for the convocation of a meeting of leading statesmen."

Mentioning by name Liberal leader Louis St. Laurent, CCF leader M. J. Coldwell and Social Credit leader Solon Low, he said they also had spoken in favor of negotiations with Russia.

In the Commons last Tuesday Mr. Diefenbaker said it would be inappropriate for this country to suggest a summit conference without prior consultation between Canada and her Western Allies.

There would have to be prior certainty that a summit conference would be generally beneficial.

Unlike the first letter to Mr. Diefenbaker—which the prime minister described to reporters as "propaganda"—Bulganin's second communication made no mention of trade talks between Canada and Russia or direct negotiations between the two countries aimed at improving the international climate.

Nor could it be considered as threatening as the first letter, which spoke at fair length of the consequences of any storing of U.S. atomic and hydrogen weapons on Canadian territory.

PM Orders Study
Of U.S. Old Age Plan

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Diefenbaker today announced an immediate study will be made to see whether aspects of the United States old age security program can be adapted in Canada in addition to present old age pensions.

He informed the Commons that Professor Gordon Huson of the University of Western Ontario has been named to carry out the study.

Mr. Diefenbaker said a preliminary examination shows the U.S. system provided higher benefits, paid at an earlier age, for a wider range of benefits. The U.S. plan was financed $65 for aged widows.

U.S. SATELLITE FIRING EXPECTED WEDNESDAY

BALTIMORE (AP)—The army's Jupiter rocket will be used this week, probably Wednesday, in a second attempt to launch a U.S. earth satellite, the Baltimore Evening Sun said today, quoting a "usually well-informed source."

U.S. Missile Program Rushed

WASHINGTON (AP)—Defence Secretary Neil McElroy told Congress today the U.S. hasn't got positive evidence that Russia is ahead in long-range ballistic missiles—but that it is acting on that basis.

Because time is critical, McElroy told the House of Representatives armed service committee, the defence department is pushing ahead with the most promising weapons programs. He said it expects within the next 18 months to begin producing the Polaris missile, a 1,500-mile weapon capable of being fired from a submerged submarine.

McElroy also said provision for a third launching base for intercontinental ballistic missiles is included in the new budget for the year beginning July 1. No location was given in the version of McElroy's testimony, made public.

plus $2,500,000,000 more than it now has on hand for 1958-59.
2. A $500,000,000 reserve fund to rush development of any breakthroughs in the weapons field together with authority to switch $200,000,000 around within the armed services "in order to take prompt advantage of new developments."

3. For foreign military and related aid, $3,868,000,000 to be spent in the coming fiscal year. This is a $119,000,000 increase over the current figure.

All told, the new budget calls for 1958-59 spending at more than $1,000,000,000 over the current rate even allowing for recent speedups in missile and other weapons programs. And the current spending program, running at $72,800,000,000 a year, is the highest in American peacetime history.

SOME CUTS TOO

Eisenhower called for cuts as well as increases in the new budget. For the armed forces, he recommended a $1,500,000,000 slash in manpower, installations and older type weapons, including B-52 bombers and some other aircraft.

And he proposed "curtailments, revisions or eliminations" of many non-military programs, ranging from federal payments to farmers to expenditures for veterans' services and benefits.

Eisenhower said: "Americans have a tradition of uniting in action when their freedoms and welfare are threatened. We do not shirk our clear responsibilities when new challenges arise."

"I feel confident that this budget expresses the way in which the American people will want to respond to the promises and dangers of the dawn of space conquest."

SMALL BUSINESS AID

And, as the White House forecast earlier, no general tax increases are proposed. Eisenhower suggested, in fact, some tax cuts to aid small business, while recommending higher taxes on aviation fuels to reduce the cost to the government of its activities in the air traffic field.

Likewise, the president included in his message a previously announced plan for a four-year $1,000,000,000 program aimed at helping the states improve education standards.

He came up with at least one recommendation which, like his foreign aid plan, is sure to meet opposition: A five-year extension of the reciprocal Trade Agreements Act, with more power for the president to make tariff-cutting agreements with other countries.

dissolve Parliament soon in any case but as he showed by his careful statements last week is hoping that the Liberals will play into his hands by providing the desired excuse for an early poll.

Without that excuse Mr. Diefenbaker's constitutional position is beyond question. He can get a dissolution at any moment. In a political sense, however, he must demonstrate to the voters that the delay of a dissolution and an election campaign are justified when many great national problems are crying for immediate action. Lacking Liberal co-operation it will be hard to justify such costly delay.

Hence the whole course of events beginning next week must depend primarily on Mr. Pearson in his first vital decision as a party leader. Probably no one but Mr. Pearson knows today how the trump card will fall after his opening speech.

But no one in Ottawa has any doubt on two points—first, that Mr. Pearson will be chosen Liberal leader and, second, that with his elevation the whole posture of the Liberal party will change from masterly delay to an open furious assault on the government.

Strategists of the Liberal party believe that the success or failure of that assault and the outcome of next week's struggle in Parliament will have a powerful, perhaps a decisive, effect on the approaching election.

Meanwhile, the Liberal party's problem at its convention is the precise opposite of that faced by the Conservative convention a year ago.

The Conservatives paid little attention to policy and, dissatisfied with their hastily-built platform, quickly locked it up, refusing to mention it in the June election. Their only interest was in the fight for leadership won by Mr. Diefenbaker.

The Liberals take Mr. Pearson's choice for granted and are concentrating on policy. Here one wing of the party is tempted to outbid the government in promises of more spending, lower taxes, and an easier life for everyone, but it seems likely from the secret counsels of the last week that this temptation will be rejected in favor of a more candid platform.

In any case, platform will be subordinated to personality in the election. The Liberal campaign as at present conceived will be built primarily on Mr. Pearson as a man uniquely fitted for government and the most popular Liberal since Wilfrid Laurier.

Ike Seeks Hike In Foreign Aid

WASHINGTON (AP)—Congress was urged today to provide $3,940,000,000 in "critically needed" new foreign aid, funds to offset Communist Russia's threats to attack, subvert and terrorize free nations.

President Eisenhower, making the request in his budget message, estimated foreign aid spending during the year starting July 1 at $3,868,000,000 up $119,000,000 from the current year's figure. Much of the spending will be from money already appropriated.

The fund, carrying the aid program into its 12th straight year, would pay for military, economic and technical assistance to 50 or more countries.

The request includes $1,800,000,000 for military assistance, $865,000,000 in defence support for economic help to countries getting the arms aid, and $1,275,000,000 in other economic and technical assistance including easy-payment development loans.

Eisenhower also gave notice he might ask for an additional $200,000,000 to begin furnishing intermediate range missiles to European Allies who agree to base them on their territory.

U.S. TO EARN $7.5 MILLION FROM SEAWAY

WASHINGTON (AP)—The St. Lawrence seaway is expected to earn $1,500,000 in tolls for the United States in the first 2½ months of operation, President Eisenhower said today in his budget for the fiscal year starting July 1.

He also estimated that the operating costs of the U.S. part of the international waterway will be about $1,500,000 a year, or $125,000 a month.

The seaway, now under construction, is scheduled to be opened to its maximum 27-foot depth in April, 1959.

Sloan Appointment Draws Criticism Of CCF Members

VANCOUVER (CP)—The appointment of former chief justice Gordon Sloan as government adviser on forestry matters was criticized here by two CCF party members.

Point Grey CCF club member Cliff Freer said it was "a frantic effort to divert the public's attention from the government's conduct in forestry matters."

Both men spoke at an open forum called to discuss the appointment.

Fuchs Resumes Trek, 150 Miles From Pole

WELLINGTON, N.Z. (Reuters)—British explorer Vivian Fuchs reported today that his trans-Antarctic expedition had reached a point 155 miles from the South Pole.

A message received at Scott base said the British party had resumed the trek today after a late start caused by bad weather. The message did not make clear what progress the party has been making, but it appears to be between 20 and 30 miles a day.

Weather was bad at the South Pole Sunday, with winds up to 45 miles an hour, which is high for that station. The temperature was 5.5 degrees Fahrenheit.

Gala Program
As Athletics
Open New Hall

ALBURNI—Alburni Valley sportsmen enjoyed one of their proudest moments Saturday when the new $100,000 Alburni Athletic Association gymnasium was officially opened before more than 1,500 fans.

E. G. Shorter, vice-president of MacMillan and Bloedel, Ltd., formally declared the hall-dream of the community's sports fans for many years—open.

Several other sports and civic dignitaries, including Mayor Loran Jordan of Port Alberni and Mayor Jack Luckhurst of Alberni, also spoke during the program, which was highlighted by a parade of players, ranging from pre-mid girls to senior
"B" men hoopers.

Joined by Elmer Speidel's senior men's team and oldtimers, the closely-packed ranks later the senior team downed Vancouver Elfers 56-41, with Alburni leading all the way.

George "Porky" Andrews of Victoria, first coach of the Athletics when the club was formed in 1948, tossed up the ball for the opening jump to give the game an official send-off.

One Ballot to Decide Leadership—Pearson

OTTAWA (CP)—Candidate
Lester B. Pearson said today he believes just one ballot will be required to decide the Liberal leadership Thursday night.

"I have no reason to believe there will be any dark horses in the race," he told a press conference.

The busy 60-year-old former external affairs minister sandwiched the press conference between appearances at the railway station where he met and shook hands with hundreds of incoming convention delegates.

Reporters recalled that his chief opponent, 54-year-old former health minister Paul Martin has stated he would give Mr.
Pearson his old portfolio back if

Wife Killed by Car
While Aiding Husband

BRALORNE, B.C. (CP)—A mother of four young children was killed on the highway between here and Pioneer mine Sunday night as she assisted her husband who had fallen on the icy road.

She was identified as Mrs.
Ronald Muir, about 35. Her husband is in Bralorne hospital in serious condition.
Police said the couple were believed walking from Bralorne to their home a mile away.

The icy road was covered with powdery snow and Muir slipped and fell. As his wife attempted to help him up a car driven by Gerald Rose of Brexton, a nearby village, came round a sharp bend, braked to avoid the couple, but slid into them.

New Speaker Disappointed
No TV for Legislature

Hugh Shantz, speaker-designate of the B.C. legislature, said today he is disappointed there will be no television coverage of the session opening a week next Thursday.

The CBC, which first televised the opening-day ceremonies last year, has advised President Bennett it cannot afford to have its cameras here this year.
Because of the heavy schedule of Centennial Year special events, its budget will not allow television of the opening, the CBC said.

Mr. Shantz said he believes that especially because this is Centennial Year, the legislature ceremony should be seen by as many British Columbians as possible.

Seating arrangements allow only about 400 people to squeeze in the chamber and public gal-eries on opening day.

Mr. Shantz said he is at-

Agreement Near On Financing
Northern Road

Mines Minister Kenneth Kier-nan said today B.C. and Ottawa are close to reaching a final agreement on financing the Cassiar-Stewart road.

Mr. Kiernan met with Federal Resources Minister Alvin Hamilton in Ottawa last week after negotiations seemed to have stalled.

"We now see eye to eye on the problem," Mr. Kiernan said today. "I don't think we're going to have too much difficulty finalizing an agreement."

Approval must be made by both the federal and provincial cabinets before details can be disclosed, Mr. Kiernan said.

The minister did say, however, that a decision has been reached on the route and the southern terminus will definitely be Stewart. It will take four years to complete the 375-mile road.

The federal government has previously agreed to put up a total of $6,000,000 toward the cost of the road. This figure was based on an estimated total cost of $12,000,000.

However, Mr. Hamilton said earlier this month that federal engineers estimate the cost at $20,550,000, and the federal government was not prepared to go beyond a $6,000,000 contribution.

Mr. Kiernan criticized the federal government for insisting on high minimum standards for the road and then failing to pay its half share. B.C.
was not prepared to spend $14, 500,000 on that basis, he said, before last week's trip to Ottawa.

Court Hearing
Faces Drivers
Doing Over 50

VANCOUVER—Speeders doing more than 50 miles an hour in the city will have to make a personal appearance before a magistrate in future instead of being able to pay a fine out of court, deputy police chief Gordon
Ambrose said Sunday.

In the past all speeders have been given tickets which could be settled without court appearance on payment of the minimum fine.

New orders given to traffic officers require that all drivers clocked at more than 50 miles an hour be sent summonses to appear in court. The deputy chief said this will enable magistrates to impose fines up to $300 in flagrant speeding cases.

CHURCH RAIDED

OSOYOOS—Burglars broke into the vestry of St. Anne's Roman Catholic Church here but failed to open a small cabinet containing several hundred dollars when the key broke off in the lock. Nothing was taken.

YOUTHS HELD

VANCOUVER—Police are holding four suspects in connection with a burglary and attempted break-in at two schools here.

Three youths were arrested shortly after midnight Saturday at Sir Richard Grenfell Elmentary School.

SAFE CRACKED

VANCOUVER—Thieves who shored during the weekend took $1,158 from the safe and left behind two old pairs of socks.

Police said the gang which raided Dacks Shoes, on Howe Street, gained entry through a skylight and ripped off the

BATTLES BANDIT

VANCOUVER—James Robertson, 66-year-old pool hall operator, was injured Saturday when he grappled with a gunman who staged an abortive holdup. He was hit on the right arm with the butt of a holdup man's gun.
Four stitches were required to close the wound.

Safe Atomic Plane Crash
Top U.K. News

LONDON (AP)—Two of London's three afternoon newspapers gave top display today to a report that an American plane carrying a nuclear weapon crashed in the United States without setting off the weapon.

The story had major impact in Britain where many persons —particularly the leaders of the Labor party—have expressed concern lest a similar accident vaporize a sizable portion of their thickly-populated island.

The headline of The Star, Liberal, and The Evening Standard, Conservative, both quoted a New York Times account saying the U.S. government had told of the crash to answer British worries.

Symphony Thrills
Sunday Audience

Orchestra Wins Highest Praise
For Work With Guest Conductor

By AUDREY S.T.D. JOHNSON
Perhaps nothing is so indicative of an orchestra's technical prowess as its performance under the unfamiliar demands and challenge of a guest conductor's presence on the podium.

If this is true then local pride in and appreciation for the Victoria Symphony Orchestra should have risen to a new high today. For with Boyd Neel, Dean of the Royal Conservatory of Music, conducting, Sunday's concert was, without benefit of partisanship or other else, one of the most delightful, stimulating and often thrilling experiences of recent memory.

The program itself is to be highly recommended to all music lovers. Opening with the dearly familiar "Meistersinger" Prelude of Wagner, it included three much less familiar items, at least two of them never before played in Victoria.

As to the Norwegian, Halvorsen's "Suite Ancienne" and El-gar's "In the South," it is to be hoped that both pieces will be heard again and before too long at that.

Comment of Dean Neel during an interview echoed in this writer's mind at several points during the concert: "My word, don't they play well!"

Neel is not a flamboyant conductor. Yet one quickly senses his intensity, his vitality and firm control were obvious as "Meistersinger" soared to its climax.

The first half was a stubborn, hard-tackling display until Alan
(The Horse) Amecch, fullback from Baltimore Colts, cut loose with an electrifying 66-yard run.

The gallop, which took Ame-ch around and frequently over several would-be tacklers, set up the first of two field goals by his teammate, Bert Rechlar.

HUGE CROWD
That goal gave the West a 9-7 halftime lead. They added another field goal and a converted touchdown in the third quarter, and a converted touchdown in the fourth quarter.

A record crowd of 66,634 sat under sunny skies to see the pick of the western conference against the best in the east of the NFL.

'Horse' Leads

fensive display in the second

League's all-star game.

hard-tackling display until Alan

REAL ESTATE

By Jack Mears

This week I think we should talk about

"How To Go About Buying a House"

And what happens when you have found the home that suits
you. The first step is to make an offer through the Agent whom you are dealing.

Now all legal offers have to be made in writing and should be accompanied by a deposit. The Agent will give you a standard form in which is filled out the description of the property, the amount of the deposit, the balance of the down payment and details of most pages existing or to be arranged.

Next on the form comes a text which states that the price "shall include the following" and here should be listed any extras which you expect to be included. It is most important that these should be properly listed as otherwise they are not in the contract.

The form then goes on into details as to adjustments of taxes, insurance premiums, water rates, and etc. The date of possession and for how long the offer is to remain open. When all the details have been filled out and signed by you, the Agent will take it to the Vendor and endeavor to obtain an acceptance.
